Collaborative Dimensions Of Learning:

The Collaborative Dimensions of Learning Mary Hamm, Dennis Adams, 1992      Handbook of Research on Facilitating Collaborative Learning Through Digital Content and Learning Technologies Keengwe, Jared, 2022-12-28

Digital content and learning technologies are now the norm at all levels of education. However, there is evidence to suggest that this digital shift is on a spectrum and the spectrum impacts learners in different ways. This means that some instructors who seek to integrate digital content may do so using traditional teaching methods while others use innovative practices to engage learners. Those who integrate innovative digital practices align their instructional practice with theories to facilitate student-centered pedagogies that support and improve the depth and scope of student learning. A primary characteristic of student-centered learning is facilitating collaborative learning using digital content and learning technologies to engage students as well as to enhance meaningful learning. The Handbook of Research on Facilitating Collaborative Learning Through Digital Content and Learning Technologies provides K-20 educators with alternative pedagogical and andragogical models that are innovative and incorporate digital content and learning technologies that promote constructive learning. Further, this book explores the relationship between constructivist learning, digital content, and learning technologies. A primary argument in this book is that constructivist teaching strategies such as collaborative learning, coupled with digital content and purposeful learning technologies, could benefit student learning in ways that are different from those practiced in traditional non-digital learning environments. Covering topics such as instructional design, self-efficacy, and library engagement, this major reference work is an essential resource for pre-service teachers, teacher educators, faculty, and administrators of K-20 education, librarians, researchers, and academicians.

Affective Learning Together Michael Baker, Jerry Andriessen, Sanna Järvelä, 2013-02-15

In the twenty-first century, being able to collaborate effectively is important at all ages in everyday life, education, and work within and across diverse cultural settings. People are increasingly linked by networks that are not only means for working and learning together but are also ways of maintaining social and emotional support. Collaborating with others requires not only elaborating new ideas together but also being able to manage interpersonal relations. In order to design and facilitate effective collaborative situations, the challenge is therefore to understand the interrelations between social, affective, and cognitive dimensions of interactions in groups. Affective Learning Together contains in-depth theoretical reviews and case studies of group learning in a variety of educational situations and taught disciplines, from small groups working in the secondary school classroom to teams of medical students and more informal working groups at university level. Contributors provide detailed analyses of the dynamics of interpersonal relations and affects in relation with processes of meaning and knowledge elaboration, including discussion of the variety of social learning situations and experiences, social identities in group learning, emotion, motivation, and knowledge elaboration, conflict, arguments, and interpersonal tensions in group learning. Bringing together a broad range of contributions from internationally recognized researchers who are seeking to broaden deepen and integrate the field of research on collaborative learning this book is essential reading for all serious students of contemporary educational research and practice

Collaborative Learning Through Computer Conferencing

Anthony R. Kaye,2012-12-06 The idea for the Workshop on which this book is based arose from discussions which we had when we both attended an earlier and more broadly based NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Computer Supported Collaborative Learning directed by Claire O Malley in Maratea Italy in 1989 We both felt that it would be interesting to organise a second Workshop in this area but specifically concerned with the use of computers and networking telematics as communication tools for collaborative learning outside the formal school setting We were particularly interested in examining the ways in which computer conferencing can be used for collaboration and group learning in the contexts of distance education adult learning professional training and organisational networking And we wanted to ensure that we included in the scope of the Workshop situations in which learning is a primary explicit goal e g an online training programme as well as situations where learning occurs as a secondary even incidental outcome of a collaborative activity whose explicit purpose might be different e g the activities of networked product teams or task groups Another goal was to try to bring together for a few days people with three different perspectives on the use of computer conferencing users researchers and software designers We hoped that if we could assemble a group of people from these three different constituencies we might collectively be able to make a small contribution to real progress in the field

Collaborative Learning: Underlying Processes and Effective Techniques Kris Bosworth, Sharon J. Hamilton, 1994-10-27 The demographic makeup of the student population in higher education has changed in dramatic ways over the past decade These changes have motivated questions about what constitutes knowledge and about how we learn and understand new concepts processes and skills Working from the premise that knowledge is not a quantifiable mass of information to be transmitted but rather a socially constituted process of making meaning within constantly changing and interacting contexts the authors of this volume seek to define and extend current understanding of collaborative learning in higher education Each chapter blends theory and practice as it explores a particular aspect of the processes underlying collaborative learning Case studies from three universities demonstrate collaborative learning in action its potential and its challenges This volume uses information about current developments in collaborative learning across the country to extend our understanding of its possibilities and offer guidance to faculty who wish to establish effective collaborative learning classrooms This is the 59th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Teaching and Learning Proceedings of the 25th European Conference on Knowledge Management Dr. Nora Obermayer, Dr Andrea Bencsik, Teacher Moderating and Student Engagement in Synchronous Computer Conferences Shufang Shi, 2005 Technology Enhanced Collaborative Learning in Projects Michele Pietro Mario Aldo Notari, 2012 Learning Communities Jodi H. Levine, 1999 How is the term learning communities used in this monograph There was never an attempt to get these authors to agree on a common definition The very nature of learning communities adaptability and flexibility make an ultimate definition an elusive goal The first two chapters intentionally discuss definitions and models of learning communities Subsequent chapters focus on elements of the work including the resources needed to build evaluate and assess learning communities The authors describe challenges unique to learning communities and often offer the experiences on their campuses as examples Individually each chapter provides insight into components of learning communities Taken collectively the chapters deepen the reader s understanding of the characteristics of effective learning community programs From publisher s description Standards and Schooling in the United States Joe L.
