Automated Model Building:

Macromolecular Crystallography Mark R. Sanderson, Jane V. Skelly, 2007-08-23 Macromolecular Crystallography is the study of macromolecules proteins and nucleic acids using X ray crystallographic techniques in order to determine their molecular structure The knowledge of accurate molecular structures is a pre requisite for rational drug design and for structure based function studies to aid the development of effective therapeutic agents and drugs The successful determination of the complete genome genetic sequence of several species including humans has recently directed scientific attention towards identifying the structure and function of the complete complement of proteins that make up that species a new and rapidly growing field of study called structural genomics There are now several important and well funded global initiatives in operation to identify all of the proteins of key model species One of the main requirements for these initiatives is a high throughput crystallization facility to speed up the protein identification process The extent to which these technologies have advanced calls for an updated review of current crystallographic theory and practice This practical reference book features the latest conventional and high throughput methods and includes contributions from a team of internationally recognized leaders and experts It will be of relevance and use to graduate students research scientists and professionals currently working in the field of conventional and high throughput macromolecular crystallography

Structural Genomics and High Throughput Structural Biology Michael Sundstrom, Martin Norin, Aled Edwards, 2005-08-23

Researchers in structural genomics continue to search for biochemical and cellular functions of proteins as well as the ways in which proteins assemble into functional pathways and networks using either experimental or computational approaches Based on the experience of leading international experts Structural Genomics and High Throughput Stru Phasing in Crystallography Carmelo Giacovazzo, 2014 The book describes phasing techniques in modern crystallography The main text is dedicated to their simple description and further mathematical details are contained in the appendices Practical aspects are described for each specific method making it a useful tool for the daily work of practising crystallographers

Caferra,Alexander Leitsch,Nicolas Peltier,2004-09-13 On the history of the book In the early 1990s several new methods and perspectives in au mated deduction emerged We just mention the superposition calculus meta term inference and schematization deductive decision procedures and automated model building It was this last eld which brought the authors of this book together In 1994 they met at the Conference on Automated Deduction CADE 12 in Nancy and agreed upon the general point of view that semantics and in particular construction of models should play a central role in the eld of automated deduction In the following years the deduction groups of the laboratory LEIBNIZ at IMAG Grenoble and the University of Technology in Vienna organized several bilateral projects promoting this topic This book emerged as a main result of this cooperation The authors are aware of the fact that the book does not cover all relevant methods of automated model building also called model construction or model generation instead the book focuses on deduction based symbolic methods for the construction of Herbrand models developed in the last 12 years Other methods of automated model building in particular also nite model building are mainly treated in the nal chapter this chapter is less formal and detailed but gives a broader view on the topic and a comparison of di erent approaches Howtoreadthisbook In the introduction we give an overview of automated deduction in a historical context taking into account its relationship with the human views on formal
