Affordance Design in "Mindful Meerkats" Jonas Wolterstorff, 2017-04-13 Sustainable Development is in desperate need of understanding human behaviour. Most issues that are considered vital require being tackled from the ground up. However, other fields have to be pulled in to make sense of behavioural patterns. These are Persuasive Technology, Human Computer Interaction Design, and Motivational Psychology. Grounding the argumentation on these schools of thought, this book argues that a smartphone game provides a wide range of capacities that can inspire individuals to make changes in their lives that multiply and become behavioural patterns that in turn have considerable impacts with regards to many of Sustainable Development's core issues such as Climate Change, economic, ecological, and financial crises. With an approach that focuses on personal wellbeing, playfulness, and intrinsic motivation, individuals shall be excited for an in-game narrative that incentivises them to fulfil real-life challenges that will kick off positive, beneficial feedback. Marandu, 2008-12-31 This study investigates using the Theory of Reasoned Action and its extensions factors that determine intention to use condoms among tertiary institution students in Botswana. The data used was obtained from a questionnaire survey of 785 students. The findings partially support existing theory for the three explanatory factors of intention were significant without controlling for the effect of each other. However, contrary to empirical findings in advanced countries, subjective norm, societal factor played a larger role in explaining intention than attitude, although the evidence is mixed. These findings suggest that in Western cultures where individualist freedom is emphasised, behavioural intention would generally be determined not only by personal attitudes but more so by the attitudes of others. Further, the relatively undeveloped economic environment might impose behavioural constraints. In several African countries, these broader social environmental issues pose critical and sometimes binding influence on the behaviour of many individuals. It follows that a study of behavioural intentions in the African scene which places greater emphasis on measuring attitudinal factors may be misleading because of under-specification of the causal social environmental perceived societal and perceived control factors. The Forum of Education, 1929 Journal of the Chemical Society Chemical Society (Great Britain), 1929 Collected Papers, 1913 The Shipley Collection of Scientific Papers, 1914 The Changing Maori Felix Maxwell Keesing, New Zealand.
