

Charge Temperature Sensor

The charge temperature sensor (CTS) is a device mounted on the intake manifold which measures the temperature of the incoming air. The sensor resistor in the CTS circuit supplies the logic module information on the temperature of the incoming air/fuel mixture. The CTS is the charge temperature sensor which is mounted on the intake manifold. The CTS is a variable resistor which is operated by the temperature of the intake air. The CTS is a variable resistor which is operated by the temperature of the intake air. The CTS is a variable resistor which is operated by the temperature of the intake air.

Throttle Body Temperature Sensor

The throttle body temperature sensor (TBS) is mounted in the throttle body. The TBS is a variable resistor which is operated by the temperature of the throttle body. The TBS is a variable resistor which is operated by the temperature of the throttle body.

Throttle Position Sensor (TPS)

The TPS is a variable resistor which is operated by the movement of the throttle blade. The TPS is a variable resistor which is operated by the movement of the throttle blade.

A voltage signal is produced by the sensor which varies with the angle of the throttle blade. The signal is sent to the logic module where it is used to adjust the fuel and timing systems, distributor, etc. and wide open throttle (WOT) position.

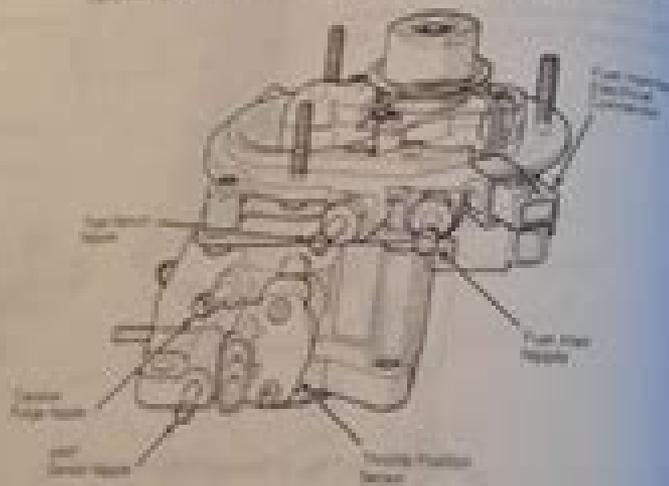

Fig. 6. Location of Throttle Position Sensor on Throttle Body

Engine Switches

Several switches provide operating information to the logic module. These include the oil pressure safety, air conditioning clutch, and brake light switches. If one or more of these switches is sensed as being in the "on" position, the logic module signals the Automatic Idle Speed Motor (AIM) to increase the speed to a specific RPM.

With the air conditioning on and the throttle blade above a specific angle, the wide open throttle circuit prevents the air conditioning clutch from engaging until the throttle blade angle is reduced.

FUEL SYSTEM

Fuel Pump

An electric, constant-displacement pump draws fuel from the fuel tank and pumps it to the fuel filter. The fuel filter is located in the fuel line between the fuel tank and the fuel filter. The fuel filter is located in the fuel line between the fuel tank and the fuel filter.

The fuel filter is located in the fuel line between the fuel tank and the fuel filter. The fuel filter is located in the fuel line between the fuel tank and the fuel filter. The fuel filter is located in the fuel line between the fuel tank and the fuel filter.

Fuel Regulator

On two-valve systems, the fuel regulator supplies fuel to the fuel injectors at a constant 50 psi (3.4 kg/cm²) pressure. On four-valve systems, the regulator supplies fuel to the fuel rail and to four injectors at a constant 50 psi (3.4 kg/cm²) pressure.

Fuel Injector

The fuel injector, an electrical solenoid, is mounted in the throttle body on non-bank models and the fuel rail on the injector is connected into the existing air stream. On bank models, 4 injectors are mounted on a fuel rail, supplying the intake manifold with the proper fuel ratio.

When power to the injector is supplied by the power module, it is controlled by the logic module, which actually determines when and how long the injector is open. When electric current is supplied to the injector, an integral armature and piston valve move a short distance against a spring, opening a small orifice.

Fuel supplied to the injector is forced around the piston valve and through the orifice, resulting in a fine spray of fuel in the shape of a hollow cone. When a constant pressure drop is maintained across the injector (by the pressure regulator), the length of time that this opening is maintained (injector "on" time) determines the amount of fuel entering the engine and, therefore, the air/fuel ratio.
