Osborne,2013-10-22

Biochemistry of Characterised Neurons provides a report on the progress made in the analysis of the biology of specific neurons in the central nervous system This book emphasizes the biochemical morphological and functional aspects of characterized neurons including ways and sophisticated techniques of isolating them This publication is divided into 11 chapters The first chapter evaluates the relevance of working with single neurons Chapters 2 to 6 discuss specific characterized invertebrate neurons containing one of the putative neurotransmitter substances Chapter 7 deals with the biochemistry of a unique vertebrate Torpedo cholinergic system that enables pure cholinergic neuronal cell bodies and endings to be analyzed separately The sensitive radiochemical procedures used to analyze transmitter substances and transmitter enzymes and how they can be adapted to map the distribution of transmitters in individual neurons of Aplysia are discussed in Chapter 8 Chapter 9 describes methods for the analysis of specific cells in the retina while Chapters 10 and 11 focus on the analysis of proteins within defined neurons This text is beneficial to biochemists and students interested in analyzing neurons National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1972 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 Biochemistry of Simple Neuronal Models ,1970 Biogenic Amines and Transmitters in the Nervous System ,1970 Information Processing by Biochemical Systems Orna Filo,Noah Lotan,2010-01-05 A Research Driven Resource on Building Biochemical Systems to Perform Information Processing Functions Information Processing by Biochemical Systems describes fully delineated biochemical systems organized as neural network type assemblies It explains the relationship between these two apparently unrelated fields revealing how biochemical systems have the advantage of using the language of the physiological processes and therefore can be organized into the neural network type assemblies much in the way that natural biosystems are A wealth of information is included concerning both the experimental aspects such as materials and equipment used and the computational procedures involved This authoritative reference Addresses network type connectivity considered to be a key feature underlying the information processing ability of the brain Describes novel scientific achievements and serves as an aid for those interested in further developing biochemical systems that will perform information processing functions Provides a viable approach for furthering progress in the area of molecular electronics and biocomputing Includes results obtained in experimental studies involving a variety of real enzyme systems Information Processing by Biochemical Systems is intended for graduate students and professionals as well as biotechnologists Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1970 Includes subject section name section and 1968 1970 technical reports Advances in Biochemical Psychopharmacology Erminio
