Creating Optimal Futures:

Selling the Future Ryan Moran, 2024-01-15 In Selling the Future Ryan Moran explains how the life insurance industry in Japan exploited its association with mutuality and community to commodify and govern lives. Covering the years from the start of the industry in 1881 through the end of World War II, Moran describes insurance companies and government officials working together to create a picture of the future as precarious and dangerous. Since it was impossible for individual consumers to deal with every contingency on their own, insurance industry administrators argued that their usage of statistical data enabled them to chart the predictable future for the aggregate. Through insurance companies and the state, they thus offered consumers a means to a perfectible future in an era filled with repeated crises. Life insurance functioned as an important modernist technology within Japan and its colonies to instantiate expectations for responsibility, to reconfigure meanings of mutuality, and to normalize new social formations such as the nuclear family as essential to life. Life insurance thus offers an important vehicle for examining the confluence of modes of mobilizing and organizing bodies, the expropriation of financial resources, and the action of disciplining workers into a capitalist system. Routledge Handbook for Creative Futures Gabrielle Donnelly, Alfonso Montuori, 2022-12-30 As the uncertainty of global and local contexts continues to amplify, the Routledge Handbook for Creative Futures responds to the increasing urgency for reimagining futures beyond dystopias and utopias. It features essays that explore the challenges of how to think about compelling futures, what these better futures might be like, and what personal and collective practices are emerging that support the creation of more desirable futures. The handbook aims to find a sweet spot somewhere between despair and naive optimism, neither shying away from the massive socio-environmental planetary challenges currently facing humanity nor offering simplistic feel-good solutions. Instead, it offers ways forward, whether entirely new perspectives or Indigenous and Traditional Knowledge perspectives that have been marginalized within modernity, and shares potential transformative practices. The volume contains contributions from established and emerging scholars, practitioners, and scholar-practitioners with diverse backgrounds and experiences, a mix of Indigenous, Black, Asian, and White/Caucasian contributors, including women, men, and trans people from around the world in places such as Kenya, India, the US, Canada, and Switzerland, among many others. Chapters explore critical concepts alongside personal and collective practices for creating desirable futures at the individual, community, organizational, and societal levels. This scholarly and accessible book will be a valuable resource for researchers and students of leadership studies, social innovation, community and organizational development, policy studies, futures studies, cultural studies, sociology, and management studies. It will also appeal to educators, practitioners, professionals, and policymakers oriented toward activating creative potential for life-affirming futures for all.

Creating Nursing's Future Eleanor J. Sullivan, 1999 This is a unique new book that comprehensively examines future issues and trends in nursing. Chapters are contributed by an expert panel of nursing leaders in the areas of advanced practice, education, research, and administration. Each chapter begins with a description of the current issues and trends emphasizing the rapid and unprecedented changes in the 1990s Following these descriptions are two scenarios that focus on future directions in nursing These two scenarios present the probable future and the preferable future Chapters conclude with discussion exercises that are designed to place students in situations in which they must solve the problems presented

Zeroing in Sam Loeb,2005 The process currently used to inform precision guided munitions PGM purchasing decisions predicts demand for munitions based on a few specific scenarios and does not include cost as an integral factor As a result planners are not able to readily see tradeoffs between the cost and effectiveness of a munitions portfolio across a variety of uncertain war scenarios This dissertation uses the methodologies of exploratory modeling and robust planning to create a capabilities based framework for the analysis of PGM purchasing decisions The research shows that exploratory analysis can be applied to understand how changes in one's budget production capacity and preparation time affect the optimal munitions portfolio for a single war scenario although the Department of Defense must be prepared to face a multitude of possible wars with limited resources Combining exploratory analysis with robust decisionmaking techniques makes it possible to create improved and flexible munitions portfolios that perform well across a variety of possible futures while operating within an economic framework
