Stress, Trauma, and Children's Memory Development Mark L. Howe, Gail S. Goodman, Dante Cicchetti, 2008-04-10 Few questions in developmental psychology have received as much international debate as those concerning the impact of childhood trauma on memory. A lack of scientific research to constrain theory has fueled debates about questions such as whether childhood trauma leads to deficits in memory including a greater propensity for errors of commission e.g. false memory or errors of omission e.g. lost memory and whether increases in cortisol subsequent to childhood trauma are associated with changes in memory given the potential of cortisol to enhance consolidation or in higher quantities to produce hippocampal damage. Moreover, scientists have struggled with how to conceptualize and measure distress and other negative emotions for instance in terms of discrete emotions: fear, anger, sadness, physiological responsivity e.g. cortisol and observer ratings. In order to most effectively answer these kinds of questions, Howe, Goodman, and Cicchetti have brought together the most recent and innovative research by scientists such as Teicher, Gould, Bremner, Quas, Bauer, Ornstein, Dalgleish, Lamb, Brainerd, and Reyna. This book goes beyond simply examining the effects of stressful and traumatic experiences on a child's memory to examine the long-term impact of such experiences on the course of normal memory development. It also highlights the consequences of early traumatic experiences for subsequent memory functioning, the longevity of trauma memories formed early in life, and their relationship to other cognitive and clinical measures of childhood performance. It is an invaluable resource for student and professional researchers in developmental, cognitive, and clinical psychology.

Research into Talent Development in Youth Sports Carlos Eduardo Gonçalves, Humberto M. Carvalho, Arne Güllich, 2023-11-16 The last decade witnessed a plethora of literature about talent identification and talent development. Most of the research is descriptive. In addition, an enormous quantity of publications attempted to define normative guidelines but mostly with relatively little empirical evidence to support them. We believe it is time to overview the field, critically appraise the situation of research, and map the topics, trends, and gaps. The large part of recent research has focused on talent identification and the factors that reveal talents. In contrast, relatively less research has addressed the question how young talents develop in a long-term process towards becoming senior high performers. This is an evolving field, and research is still in a primarily explorative stage. A variety of different study designs and methodological approaches have been employed to explore different factors and outcomes of talent development, yielding heterogeneous findings.
