Learning Unit 1

LO1 – Explain why teachers should know about language development

Teachers should know about language development because language is the foundation of learning. In the context of teaching Afrikaans as a subject, understanding how language develops helps teachers to:

1. Support learners at different stages of development: Language development is not uniform across all children. Knowing the typical stages helps Afrikaans teachers tailor their teaching strategies for learners who are still acquiring vocabulary, grammar, and comprehension skills, whether Afrikaans is their home language or an additional language.
2. Identify language difficulties early: Teachers who are aware of normal and delayed language development can spot challenges like poor vocabulary, difficulty forming sentences, or problems with pronunciation. Early identification allows for timely support and intervention.
3. Promote effective communication: Afrikaans teachers help learners express themselves clearly, both orally and in writing. Understanding language development allows them to scaffold instruction, build confidence, and create opportunities for meaningful interaction.
4. Enhance literacy teaching: Reading and writing in Afrikaans depend on solid language skills. Knowledge of language development allows teachers to systematically teach phonics, vocabulary, grammar, and sentence construction appropriate to learners' cognitive and linguistic levels.
5. Foster multilingualism: In South African classrooms, many learners speak Afrikaans as a second or third language. Understanding how additional languages are acquired helps teachers support bilingual or multilingual learners in a culturally responsive and linguistically appropriate way.
