An Essay on Urban Economic Theory Yorgos Y. Papageorgiou, David Pines, 1998-12-31 Launches a series intended to provide an outlet for longer scholarly works dealing topics in urban and regional economies so that researchers will not find it necessary to cut down longer works for journal publication or undertake only those projects suitable to the shorter form The first volume limits its scope to studies looking at issues of location and land use that are peculiar to cities discussing both positive and normative aspects Considers urban land use and rent theory including the role of the centrifugal and centripetal market forces that generate them the size and functional distribution of cities generated by the interplay between those same two forces and the economic geography of cities which deals with the function size and distance between cities Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Geography, Structural Change and Economic Development Neri Salvadori, Pasquale Commendatore, Massimo Tamberi, 2014-05-14

The authors in this book regard the process of economic expansion as a non homogeneous and multifaceted phenomenon which has deeply affected human welfare and cultural social and political change The book is a bridge between the theorists Rosenstein Rodan Lewis Myrdal and Hirschmann who in the post war period analyzed regional inequalities structural change and dualism and the modern literature on economic growth The latter has emphasized the existence of multiple equilibria bifurcations and various types of dynamic complexity and clarified the conditions for the emergence of phenomena such as cumulative causation path dependence and hysteresis These are the typical ingredients of structural change economic development or underdevelopment

Development Perspectives on and a Decision Support System for Aboriginal Community-based Economies A. Ghebremichael, A. A. Kubursi, Northern Forestry Centre (Canada), 2003 This paper highlights the main challenges in fostering sustainable development of Aboriginal community based economies It discusses the challenges associated with harmonizing the Aboriginal economy and the modern Canadian economy and presents a theoretical analysis of free trade between a large advanced well connected modern economy and a small poor disarticulated economy It then profiles the socio economic characteristics of the Moose Cree First Nation in northern Ontario and describes a decision support system developed for that community The system is used to determine whether it would be appropriate to develop a forest management unit within the traditional territory of the First Nation The report presents results of using the system to evaluate the socio economic impacts of a proposed timber harvesting operation under two scenarios The theoretical insights quantitative results from this case study are used to make suggestions about approaches to fostering sustainable development within Aboriginal community based economies
