

CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN NIGERIAN NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT: NIGERIA STRATEGIC DEVELOPMENT PLAN

Okoli Chigozie Gerald Philip

The recent Nigerian development plan is the perspective plan called the National Vision 20:2020 which is designed as the most dependable tool for national growth and advancement of Nigeria. A country's ability to rapidly grow, largely depends on the development plan it has adopted; the strategy for implementing the development plan; and the timely evaluation of the strategy for re-strategizing for re-implementation process and sustainable impactful return from the set objectives in the interest of the citizens of the country. Nigeria for the past 67 years has formulated different types of plan to date. Some of the plans include fixed term plan, medium term plan, rolling plan, policy plan, and perspective plan. Considering the series of plans that have been implemented and the one currently running, Nigeria still faces a problem of steering the attainment of the set forecast and objectives of the development plan in different states in Nigeria. This paper adopts secondary sources of information to discuss the following: The Nigeria development plan in the past, major limitations of the past developmental plan, today's strategic development plan, strategic action for achieving strategic thinking; and key approaches to achieve the best results from strategic thinking.

INTRODUCTION

Development at a speed of thought is what is most essential to trickling down development in every state in Nigeria and fast tracking the most essential transformational agenda attainment for any country. For every thought to get the maximum result in the interest of the thinker, such thought must be structured and documented for analysis, interpretation and implementation. How a country thinks determines how fast it develops, and developed thoughts is what breeds strategies.

The strategies that a country often thinks about, greatly affects how the country plans for the transformation of its state. Planning is looking ahead and anticipating the future. Anticipation provides the opportunity to make choice from alternatives to achieve the specified objectives. When choice is made, the good enough plan selected will lead to transformation in a political system like Nigerian, as it puts in place for the progression of its economical, social, and environmental indicators.

Among all the indicative areas that the government intends to grow, its focus is on the improvement of the living standard of its people. Similarly, no country can advance without a plan; the plan is the strategy for national advancement. The plan selected involves formulating programs of action to attain these specific objectives.

The Nigeria strategic plan is the government's conscious attempt to regulate and coordinate economic decision in an attempt to influence or control some of the economic variables, in order to move the state from the present state to a more desirable state. The plan was intended to further the process of establishing a solid base for the long term economic and social development of Nigeria as observed by Ogunjimi (1997:100)
