

University building in Paris (F)

Architect: Paul Delacour, architect
Architectural office: Paul Delacour
Client: Bureau d'Urbanisme
Location: Paris
Structure: reinforced concrete

The building on the Grande Courneuve near the business centre of Paris comprises the university buildings of a typical college and its outdoor site and dates from the 1960s to 1970, as does the extension. The architect's work is relatively minimalist and suited to housing a school. Instead of a single main courtyard, the new building has two, and the extension (20%) has outdoor. The urban character is similar throughout the building and forms a central space for a courtyard from the street, the entry level, a ramp and an interior space. The building has been built in a way that allows for future expansion and change of the upper floors. The entire area is a single structure, including what was previously in the use. The extension of the floor was around large concrete pillars and a central staircase. The entire area is a single structure, including what was previously in the use. A Matter of Detail Andrew Brandel, Veena Das, Sandra Laugier, Perig Pitrou, 2025-11-25 A Matter of Detail inspires new ways of thinking about detail by bringing anthropology philosophy art history and aesthetics into direct conversation Co editors Brandel Das Laugier and Pitrou challenge a long standing assumption that the history of detail begins with European modernity and follows a teleological course from an object of scorn to a sign of the good In its place they offer a history of attention to detail that draws on classical and vernacular histories and traditions found in grammar ritual and poetics around the world Emphasizing detail as a method and moving between its usage as a noun detail and a verb detailing enables them to tell stories about the reassembly of detail across accidents contingencies and unintended consequences From this vantage the book argues that details are not always small and insignificant Rather there is a dynamic relationship between the minute and the grand detail and surface which makes the proliferation of details threatening to the idea of an authoritative and integrated imagination of the whole This expanded context generates ways of conceiving detail as a conceptual and moral mode of self formation and being toward others both human and non human

Single Family Houses Christian Schittich,2012-12-17 The private single family house is still very much the preferred choice of home Yet in recent years there have been many changes not only in the personal situations of the residents their expectations and desires but also in the rising costs of energy and raw materials This has meant that issues such as multi functionalism the use of innovative building materials or energy efficient building methods are increasing in significance In this completely revised and expanded second edition these topical developments have been taken into consideration The organisation and layout of the first volume with its concise and detailed project documentation has been retained The authors introduce floor plan solutions using contemporary projects which bear in mind changing family structures At the same time the contributions provide an in depth introduction to planning single family houses from the design of the floor plan to useful tips for the realisation In addition to this fundamental information 22 projects are documented providing ideas and inspiration for planners students and clients The international selection of projects highlights current trends in planning and designing single family housing and reveals the tried and tested basics
