Reproduction: Part A Peter K.T. Pang,1991-02-28 Vertebrate Endocrinology Fundamentals and Biomedical Implications Volume 4 Part A Reproduction provides information pertinent to the structure and function of the vertebrate reproductive endocrinology This book deals with a variety of subjects including oocyte maturation gestation ovulation vitellogenesis spermatogenesis and the maturation and aging of the reproductive system Organized into seven chapters this volume starts with an overview of the reproductive mechanisms and their underlying bases with focus on the similarities between species This book then discusses the factors of reproductive failure in many species including failure of ovulation abnormal fertilization failure of fertilization and failure of implantation Other chapters explore the cellular endocrinological and molecular mechanisms that regulate oocyte maturation in mammals which is directly stimulated by the need to improve human fertility and fecundity in domestic mammals The final chapter deals with the aging of the brain pituitary gonadal axis in vertebrates Reproductive endocrinologists and developmental neuroendocrinologists will find this book extremely useful

A Critical and Historical Study of the Pectic Substances of Plants M. H. Carré Branfoot,1929 Molecular and Metabolic Mechanisms Associated with Fleshy Fruit Quality Ana M. Fortes, Antonio Granell, Mario Pezzotti, Mondher Bouzayan,2017-09-08 Fleshy Fruits are a late acquisition of plant evolution In addition of protecting the seeds these specialized organs unique to plants were developed to promote seed dispersal via the contribution of frugivorous animals Fruit development and ripening is a complex process and understanding the underlying genetic and molecular program is a very active field of research Part of the ripening process is directed to build up quality traits such as color texture and aroma that make the fruit attractive and palatable As fruit consumers humans have developed a time long interaction with fruits which contributed to make the fruit ripening attributes conform our needs and preferences This issue of Frontiers in Plant Science is intended to cover the most recent advances in our understanding of different aspects of fleshy fruit biology including the genetic molecular and metabolic mechanisms associated to each of the fruit quality traits It is also of prime importance to consider the effects of environmental cues cultural practices and postharvest methods and to decipher the mechanism by which they impact fruit quality traits Most of our knowledge of fleshy fruit development ripening and quality traits comes from work done in a reduced number of species that are not only of economic importance but can also benefit from a number of genetic and genomic tools available to their specific research communities For instance working with tomato and grape offers several advantages since the genome sequences of these two fleshy fruit species have been deciphered and a wide range of biological and genetic resources have been developed Ripening mutants are available for tomato which constitutes the main model system for fruit functional genomics In addition tomato is used as a reference species for climacteric fruit which ripening is controlled by the phytohormone ethylene Likewise grape is a reference species for non climacteric fruit even though no single master switches controlling ripening initiation have been uncovered yet In the last period the genome sequence of an increased number of fruit crop species became available which creates a suitable situation for research communities around crops to get organized and information to be shared through public repositories On the other hand the availability of genome wide expression profiling technologies has enabled an easier study of global transcriptional changes in fruit species where the sequenced genome is not yet available In this issue authors will present recent progress including original data as well as authoritative reviews on our understanding of fleshy fruit biology focusing on tomato and grape as model species

Scanes,2012-12-02 Development Maturation and Senescence of Neuroendocrine Systems A Comparative Approach discusses the various phases of the aging continuum of neuroendocrine systems This book explores the fundamental and physiological component of animals which is an essential contributor to senescence Organized into three parts encompassing 21 chapters this volume starts with a discussion of the concept of neurosecretory neuron that was introduced by Ernst Scharrer in 1928 This book discusses the challenges in the study of the development of the neuroendocrine system in insects with a focus on Lepidoptera Other chapters consider the neuroendocrine mechanisms that control the physiological processes in crustaceans The reader is then introduced to the major neurohemal structures in crustaceans including the sinus gland the pericardial organs and the post commissural organs The final chapter discusses the two brain systems that show impact of endogenous steroids that account for subsets of senescent changes This book is a valuable resource for neurobiologists molecular biologists and immunologists The Encyclopedia of Seeds J.
