ANSWER KEY

Directions: Research the life of Jack London and answer the prompts in each of the spaces.

EARLY YEARS: What was his birth and upbringing like?

Jack grew up within a working-class family in San Francisco; he grew up working from a young age in a cannery. He later began sailing on a ship; he purchased to catch salmon. After years of struggling through hard work, he took other difficult jobs such as working for a saw mill and railway. Over time, he became homeless and eventually went to high school as well as the University of California.

GOLD RUSH: How was he involved in the search for gold in the Klondike region?

At age 21, he joined his brother-in-law to go and search the Yukon Territory. He did not find much success in the role because he endured many challenges from the harsh conditions which would inspire some of his stories. He spent time writing some of his best stories that he submitted to magazines.

FAMILY LIFE: Who were some of his family members? How did he start a family?

His father was an entrepreneur who left the family and his mother was a music teacher. He received his last name, London, from his grandfather. He was also raised by another family that moved in between as the Pearson family. Jack was married twice. Once to a woman named Elizabeth, having two daughters with her, and later to a woman named Charmian.

LITERATURE: What types of literature did he write? What are some of the genres and themes?

Jack London was well known for his popular fictional short stories and novels. The short stories gained him fame, many of which were inspired by his experiences in the Klondike region, and he rarely found success with similar types of stories. His literature often falls within the presentist literary movements of Naturalism and Realism. They can also be placed in the broader category of "Adventure Fiction." The stories often reflect a rejection of Romanticism and seek to be objective, often with the intent of being social commentaries. They include themes such as excitement, survival of the fittest, return to land, socialism, mystery, and individualism.
