Brain Mechanisms:

Principles of Neurodynamics Frank Rosenblatt, 1962 Part I attempts to review the background basic sources of data concepts and methodology to be employed in the study of perceptrons In Chapter 2 a brief review of the main alternative approaches to the development of brain models is presented Chapter 3 considers the physiological and psychological criteria for a suitable model and attempts to evaluate the empirical evidence which is available on several important issues Chapter 4 contains basic definitions and some of the notation to be used in later sections are presented Parts II and III are devoted to a summary of the established theoretical results obtained to date Part II Chapters 5 through 14 deals with the theory of three layer series coupled perceptrons on which most work has been done to date Part III Chapters 15 through 20 deals with the theory of multi layer and cross coupled perceptrons Part IV is concerned with more speculative models and problems for future analysis Of necessity the final chapters become increasingly heuristic in character as the theory of perceptrons is not yet complete and new possibilities are continually coming to light Author Brain Mechanisms, 1963-01-01 Brain Mechanisms Brain Mechanisms in Problem Solving and Intelligence Robert Thompson, Francis M. Crinella, Jen Yu, 2013-11-21 This book is the outcome of a decade of research on the neuroanatomical mechanisms of learning in the young laboratory rat It is essentially a discourse on the functional organization of the brain in relation to problem solving ability and intelligence During the period between 1980 and 1989 well over 1000 weanling albino rats were subjected to localized brain damage or sham operations in the case of the controls under deep anesthesia and aseptic surgical conditions were allowed to recover and subsequently were tested on a wide variety of problems designed to measure general learning ability Since virtually every part of the brain rostral to the medulla has been explored with lesions it has become possible not only to map a number of putative brain systems underlying the acquisition of distinctive problem solving tasks but to isolate several neuroanatomical mechanisms that appear to be selectively involved in the acquisition of particular kinds of goal directed learned activities Of particular interest was the discovery of a nonspecific mechanism previously referred to in our research reports as the general learning system inhabiting the interior parts of the brain One objective of this volume was to make these maps available in a single source Another was to provide a description of learning syndromes arising from local lesions to different parts of the brain Brain Mechanisms of Perception and Memory Taketoshi Ono, 1993 Information about perception and memory is accumulating rapidly in both basic and clinical neuroscience and this progress has been made using a variety of approaches while drawing jointly on the traditions of neuroanatomy neurophysiology and neuropsychology In order to disseminate research occurring in leading laboratories around the world an international symposium on Brain Mechanisms of Perception and Memory From Neuron to Behavior was held in Toyama Japan in October 1991 Planned in conjunction with this important meeting this volume presents the work of over 40 eminent scientists from around the world Their research covers many topics including such core issues as the perception of form perception of motion memory and the limbic system the neocortex and neural plasticity A prominent area of discussion at the symposium and one which figures prominently in this volume is work with nonhuman primates especially useful in the study of perception and memory The breadth of coverage of this volume in conjunction with its extensive studies of nonhuman primates makes this book a necessary reference for those interested in current perspectives on brain mechanisms of perception and memory Neuroscientists neuropsychologists cognitive and physiological psychologists will find this authoritative state of the art review important and informative reading Explaining the Brain Carl F. Craver, 2007-06-07

What distinguishes good explanations in neuroscience from bad Carl F Craver constructs and defends standards for evaluating neuroscientific explanations that are grounded in a systematic view of what neuroscientific explanations are descriptions of multilevel mechanisms In developing this approach he draws on a wide range of examples in the history of neuroscience e g Hodgkin and Huxleys model of the action potential and LTP as a putative explanation for different kinds of memory as well as recent philosophical work on the nature of scientific explanation Readers in neuroscience psychology the philosophy of mind and the philosophy of science will find much to provoke and stimulate them in this book How We Remember Michael E. Hasselmo, 2011-10-28 A novel perspective on the biological mechanisms of episodic memory focusing on the encoding and retrieval of spatiotemporal trajectories Episodic memory proves essential for daily function allowing us to remember where we parked the car what time we walked the dog or what a friend said earlier In How We Remember Michael Hasselmo draws on recent developments in neuroscience to present a new model describing the brain mechanisms for encoding and remembering such events as spatiotemporal trajectories He reviews physiological breakthroughs on the regions implicated in episodic memory including the discovery of grid cells the cellular mechanisms of persistent spiking and resonant frequency and the topographic coding of space and time These discoveries inspire a theory for understanding the encoding and retrieval of episodic memory not just as discrete snapshots but as a dynamic replay of spatiotemporal trajectories allowing us to retrace our steps to recover a memory In the main text of the book he presents the model in narrative form accessible to scholars and advanced undergraduates in many fields In the appendix he presents the material in a more quantitative style providing mathematical descriptions appropriate for advanced undergraduates and graduate students in neuroscience or engineering Brain Mechanisms and Human Learning Chester Alvin Lawson, 1967 Houghton Mifflin books in psychology Bibliography p 124 126 Brain Mechanisms and Drug Action Houston Neurological Society, 1957 Brain Mechanisms L. Andrew Coward, 2021-09-14 Brain Mechanisms Linking Cognitive Phenomena to Neuron Activity shows how to understand higher cognition in terms of brain anatomy physiology and chemistry Natural selection pressures have resulted in all information processes in the brain being one of just two general types condition definition detections and behavioural recommendation definition integrations Using these information process types hierarchies of description can be created that map from cognitive phenomena to the activity of the billions of neurons in the brain These hierarchies make it possible to create an intuitively satisfying understanding of how neuron activity results in human memory consciousness and self awareness These ideas were previously described at a technical level in Towards a Theoretical Neuroscience from Cell Chemistry to Cognition This book presents the ideas for a more general readership

Mechanisms in Diachrome Wendell Jordan S. Krieg,1955      Brain Mechanisms and Spatial Vision D.J. Ingle,Marc Jeannerod,David Lee,1984-12-31 This volume contains chapters derived from a N A T O Advanced Study Institute held in June 1983 As the director of this A S I it was my hope that some of the electrophysiologists could express the potentialities of their work for perceptual theory and that some perceptionists could speculate on the underlying units of perception in a way that would engage the imagination of physiologists. The reader will have to be the judge of whether this was achieved or whether such a psychophysiological interlingua is still overly idealistic. It is clear that after the revolution precipitated by Hubel and Weisel in understanding of visual cortical neurons we still have only a foggy idea of the behavioral output of any particular species of cortical detector. It was therefore particularly unfortunate that two persons who have made great strides in correlating interesting facets of cat cortical physiology with human psychophysics, Max Cynader and Martin Regan of Dalhousie University, were unable to attend this meeting. Nevertheless, a number of new and challenging ideas regarding both spatial perception and cortical mechanisms are represented in this volume and it is hoped that the reader will remember not only the individual demonstrations but the critical questions posed by the apposition of the two different collections of experimental facts.
