Charlotte Brontë Rosamond Langbridge,1929 Wuthering Heights Guido Scholl,2008-11

Seminar paper from the year 2000 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1.5 University of Hannover language English abstract Wuthering Heights is Emily Brontë's 1818-1848 only novel and was published in 1847. It became tremendously popular and is today looked upon as one of the most important works of its period, especially in terms of describing nature. It is also interesting though to examine the description of its characters, especially that of Heathcliff, whose descent and parentage is not unveiled in the story. The reader is tempted into thinking that he might be a Gypsy by heritage. The question whether the main character of Emily Brontë's novel Wuthering Heights, the foundling Heathcliff, is a Gypsy must certainly be approached from two different angles. The first thing to discuss is his mere appearance in the novel and the second thing is the examination of how Emily Brontë presents him. The difference of these two ways of approaching the question is one of the very basic features of literature as it is understood in our culture: what does the reader perceive when perusing a text and what is the author's intention for the reader's perception? It is certainly difficult to trace down what the author's intention really is and to separate that from one's own understanding of a piece of literature, but one may at least try to approach this task by looking at the story first and then examine the way of representation. Thus the first step in this paper will be to show which features classify Heathcliff as being a Gypsy in the fashion of the stereotypical Gypsy of 19th-century literature and which features might oppose such a view. The second step will be to describe Emily Brontë's way of representation.

Where Does That Footpath Lead? Carole Loader,2010-08-01 On 26 April 2008, 41-year-old Carole Loader embarked on an amazing journey to run from Land's End to John O'Groats on her own, a distance well in excess of 1,000 miles. Not having the luxury of company or aid from a support crew, she had to carry everything she required in a backpack. The ten-week journey pushed her mental and physical boundaries and took her along quiet country lanes, bridleways, and long-distance footpaths. In the process, she raised a substantial amount of money for charity: 6,000 for Cancer Research UK and 4,800 for The Paul Seal Trust. Fund-raising money for a young man from Bournemouth paralysed from the neck down in a surfing accident. Where Does That Footpath Lead? is her account of that incredible adventure. Based on the diary she kept at the time, it tells of the people she met and the sights and sounds she encountered along the way. The accompanying pictures provide a vivid illustration of the wonderful and diverse countryside of England and Scotland she travelled through.
