Constructing the Literary Self Patsy J. Daniels,2014-06-02 In the twentieth century as previously excluded groups including ethnic minorities women the disabled and the differently gendered gained a voice in society group identity also changed and new definitions became necessary Whether through their group affiliations or in spite of these affiliations many individuals sought a new definition of themselves As can be expected much literature explores these changes and depicts the quest for new definitions and the search for individuality in the light of new definitions Construction or definition of the self was once available only to the elite and the freedom of some to define their identity was sacrificed so that others could make their own self definitions this practice can be found throughout much of history This volume is about that kind of oppression and various strategies of escaping from oppression as depicted in serious literature Its thirteen essays all by recognized scholars are divided into five categories Race Gender and the Self Assimilation and the Self Black

Constructing Professional Discourse Concepción Orna-Montesinos,2012-01-17 This book explores the fascinating role that language plays in the construction of non verbal objects by mapping out the ontological meaning of the specialised concepts and the domain specific knowledge embedded in them In doing so it provides a comprehensive linguistic insight into the discourse of professional domain specific communities and hence into the communication practices and procedures of those communities In this respect the book offers a response to the claims made by many of the most influential applied linguists today such as Vijay Bhatia 1993 2004 John Swales 1990 2004 or Ken Hyland 2002 among others who have consistently defended the need for applied linguistic research into the textual generic and social perspectives on the under researched interrelatedness of the discursual and professional practices of a discipline Specifically this book provides readers with an integrative multi perspective approach to the study of professional domain specific discourses While it mainly draws on the tenets of genre theory and discourse semantics it also nurtures from the theoretical and empirical foundations of applied linguistics cognitive linguistics corpus linguistics and ontological engineering The book starts from the analysis of domain specific texts as final written products with specific lexico grammatical semantic and rhetorical features to later enquire into the written products as textual artefacts closely linked to the social context of production and interpretation of the text This integrative approach provides fresh new insights into the way the processes of writing are affected by the community specific institutional and socio historical circumstances in which domain specific texts are produced You Are
