Creating Value for Leaders Gautam

Mahajan,2023-06-08 Creating value is the foundation of all business It s what sets you apart from your competition secures long term customers and brings distinct meaning to your brand and your stakeholders Without creating value for your business your unique offering will be seen as just another commodity in the eyes of your target market Creating value is in every business leader s vocabulary and uppermost in their overall strategy In fact creating value is the purpose of a company according to the Business Roundtable and the World Economic Forum That is another key reason why more people want to understand and utilise value creation for their benefit and the good of their stakeholders Many companies and leaders seek to create value but do not know how to As a result they create and destroy value unconsciously This book shows you how to create value consciously To create long term value organizations need to put in place the mindset capabilities and relationships that enable them to meet the needs of their customers and stakeholders This book makes value creation understood and used by executives and leaders more effectively The book describes value creation in its various nuances how it arises how it is used and the width and scope of value creation from how it impacts a company and how that company can become more successful by creating value for customers and other stakeholders The author also provides tips for CEOs managers HR and other professionals on how to succeed in value creation as a long term strategy and in day to day work Numerous examples and case studies illustrate the points being made by the author Australian Commodity Tax Reforms and Consumer Behavioural Response Elizabeth Symons,Neil A. Warren,1993 Environment, Information and Consumer Behaviour Signe Krarup,Clifford S. Russell,2005 Over the past decade there has been growing interest in the role of information in the promotion of environmentally friendly behaviour This book examines how and why the provision of such information can affect individual decisions concerning buying or consuming a product or valuing a policy The information can take the form of a product label or a statement in a survey questionnaire and the decision can be what product to buy what food to eat or how to answer a contingent valuation question The chapters in this volume carefully explore the explanations for consumer behaviour in different scenarios where information is provided about the public implications of individual decisions The first set of chapters examines the prospects for eco labelling as a tool of environmental policy from a variety of different perspectives They also look at how this form of information provision compares with more familiar policy instruments in achieving efficiency goals In the second and third sections the focus is on environmental and food labelling in which a combination of private and public motives for purchase decisions is found Finally the role of information in contingent valuation surveys is considered in particular the impact of information and time in altering stated value responses Containing both theoretical and empirical research this original volume will appeal to environmental economists researchers and policymakers interested in the role of information provision in economic behaviour and environmental policy The Changing Consumer Alison Anderson,Kevin Meethan,R Steven Miles,Steven Miles,2005-07-08 The consumer ethic is ubiquitous Everything we do see hear and even feel appears to be connected in some way to our experience as consumers
