Testing American Sea Power Craig C. Felker, 2013-03-28 The Pacific Theater in World War II depended on American sea power This power was refined between 1923 and 1940 when the U S Navy held twenty one major fleet exercises designed to develop strategy and allow officers to enact plans in an operational setting Prior to 1923 naval officers relied heavily on the theories of Capt Alfred Thayer Mahan who argued that sea control was vital to military victory best attained through use of the battleship Fleet exercises however allowed valuable practice with other military resources and theories As a direct result of these exercises the navy incorporated different technologies and updated its own outdated strategies Although World War II brought unforeseen challenges and the disadvantages of simulation exercises quickly became apparent fleet problems may have opened the door to different ideas that allowed the U S Navy ultimately to succeed Testing American Sea Power challenges the conventional wisdom that Mahanian theory held the American Navy in a steel grip Felker s research and analysis the first to concentrate on the navy s interwar exercises will make a valuable contribution to naval history for historians military professionals and naval instructors Strategic Review ,1986 dedicated to the advancement and understanding of those principles and practices military and political which serve the vital security interests of the United States China, the United States, and 21st-Century Sea Power Andrew S.
