Dead Pawn:

My Life with Things Elizabeth Chin, 2016-05-19 Unconventional and provocative My Life with Things is Elizabeth Chin's meditation on her relationship with consumer goods and a critical statement on the politics and method of anthropology. Chin centers the book on diary entries that focus on everyday items: kitchen cabinet knobs, shoes, a piano, and uses them to intimately examine the ways consumption resonates with personal and social meaning. From writing love haikus about her favorite nail polish and discussing the racial implications of her tooth cap to revealing how she used shopping to cope with a miscarriage and contemplating how her young daughter came to think that she needed Lu Xun, throughout Chin keeps Karl Marx and his family's relationship to their possessions in mind, drawing parallels between Marx's napkins, the production of late nineteenth-century table linens, and Chin's own vintage linen collection. Unflinchingly and refreshingly honest, Chin unlocks the complexities of her attachments to, reliance on, and complicated relationships with her things. In so doing, she prompts readers to reconsider their own consumption as well as their assumptions about the possibilities for creative scholarship.

Hunting To Survive Kenzi Morrow, In a world torn apart by war and famine, a lone mother refuses to surrender to despair. Armed with nothing but grit, instinct, and a bow she crafted herself, she takes to the wilderness each day hunting, tracking, and bargaining for every scrap of food to keep her fragile twins alive. As threats close in from nature, bandits, and the chaos of a crumbling era, her bravery becomes legendary. But survival is only the beginning. To protect her children's future, she must turn her fierce determination into strength that can reshape her destiny.
