

Holy Sonnet Xiv: Batter My Heart

Batter my heart, three-personed God; for You
As yet but knock, breathe, shine, and seek to mend;
That I may rise and stand, o'erthrow me, and bend
Your force to break, blow, burn, and make me new.
I, like an usurped town, to another due,
Labor to admit You, but O, to no end;
Reason, Your viceroy in me, me should defend,
But is captived, and proves weak or untrue.
Yet dearly I love You, and would be loved fain,
But am betrothed unto Your enemy.
Divorce me, untie or break that knot again;
Take me to You, imprison me, for I
Except You enthrall me, never shall be free,
Nor ever chaste, except You ravish me.

Batter My Heart:

„Holy Sonnet 14 - Batter my heart“ by John Donne. An Interpretation Vera Henne, 2016-10-06 Essay from the year 2012 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Literature Works grade 1 7 University of Stuttgart language English abstract This essay will show how the lyric persona in Holy Sonnet XIV fully self abandons himself with help of various stylistic devices The 14th Holy Sonnet by John Donne who lived from 1572 until 1631 was written around 1609 but it was not until after his death that his son published it in 1633 As one of the most acknowledged metaphysical poets John Donne especially had a comeback by the publication of T S Eliot s essays The Metaphysical Poets and Andrew Marvell in 1921 On the Shore of Nothingness Reuven Tsur, 2003 This book studies how poetic structure transforms verbal imitations of religious experience into concepts The book investigates how such a conceptual language can convey such non conceptual experiences as meditation ecstasy or mystic insights Briefly it explores how the poet by using words can express the ineffable It submits to close reading English French German Spanish Italian Armenian and Hebrew texts from the Bible through medieval renaissance metaphysical and baroque poetry to romantic and symbolistic poetry Religion and Literature Robert Detweiler, David Jasper, 2000-01-01 Featuring a selection from over 80 key texts this anthology aims to help the reader to understand the common origins of religious expression and of literature The texts included cover classical literature the Bible English and European classics and contemporary works John Donne, Body and Soul Ramie Targoff, 2008-11-15 For centuries readers have struggled to fuse the seemingly scattered pieces of Donne s works into a complete image of the poet and priest In John Donne Body and Soul Ramie Targoff offers a way to read Donne as a writer who returned again and again to a single great subject one that connected to his deepest intellectual and emotional concerns Reappraising Donne s oeuvre in pursuit of the struggles and commitments that connect his most disparate works Targoff convincingly shows that Donne believed throughout his life in the mutual necessity of body and soul In chapters that range from his earliest letters to his final sermon Targoff reveals that Donne s obsessive imagining of both the natural union and the inevitable division between body and soul is the most continuous and abiding subject of his writing Ramie Targoff achieves the rare feat of taking early modern theology seriously and of explaining why it matters Her book transforms how we think about Donne Helen Cooper University of Cambridge John Donne Harold Bloom, 2009 Presents a critical analysis of some of the works of John Donne with a short biography Post-closet Masculinities in Early Modern England Andrew William Barnes, 2009 Post Closet Masculinities in Early Modern England argues for a theory of male subjectivity that subordinates questions of desire beneath the historical imperatives that inform those desires Employing a post closet identity theory this book argues that writers like John Donne William Shakespeare and George Herbert created an ideology of masculinity in conjunction with and in response to the great epistemological upheavals in early modern England Donne Shakespeare and Herbert helped to create a masculinity that embodies an ironic subject position that is constantly shifting between men s desires for women and men s simultaneous rejection of women's bodies and the inevitable encounter with the figure of the sodomite that their rejection invites

BOOK JACKET The Facts on File Companion to British Poetry Virginia Brackett, 2008 Presents a comprehensive A to Z reference with approximately 400 entries providing facts about British poets and their poetry from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries

Sermons Price Collier, 1892 The Double-dealer, 1923 Religious Poetry. The Speaker's Relation to God in Donne's "Batter my Heart" and Herbert's "The Collar" Melanie W., 2014-11-06 Seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 2-3 Ernst Moritz Arndt University of Greifswald language English abstract After the great poetry in the 13th century which was highly influenced by the Franciscan religion the English religious lyric found a new age in the 17th century Two of the main poets of this time also called metaphysical poets are John Donne and George Herbert whose poems will be analyzed in this term paper Reading Batter my Heart and The Collar raises not only the question of religiosity but also of the speaker's relation to God Apart from the religious content there are also stylistic devices which are crucial for the time of metaphysical poetry But before it comes to an analysis there will be given a short overview about the historical background the importance of religion for the poets at that time and their impact on poetry to understand the meaning of their poems in a better way Finally there will be made a comparison of the two poems concerning the way they deal with religiosity and how they implement their idea of the speaker's relation to God

A Lesson in Rhetoric Marc D. Giullian, 2014 A reexamination of John Donne's Holy Sonnet Batter my heart especially one looking at the sonnet's relationship to Early Modern rhetoric is long overdue In this paper I hope to show that a focus on Donne's relationship to Early Modern rhetoric yields several useful new insights I argue specifically that Donne was probably exposed to Non Ramist rhetorical methods and theory at many points in his education from his childhood to his college years to his years at the Inns of Court Furthermore Non Ramist rhetoric has moral implications suggesting that aspects of an author's feelings character and desires can be analyzed by looking at the writer's rhetorical choices in relation to a specific audience in a specific situation After discussing Donne's rhetorical education I will look at how the rhetorical decisions of the poetic speaker in Donne's Batter my heart reveal his opinions of God and develop his attitudes toward God over the course of the poem Indeed the poetic speaker uses rhetoric that exerts power back on him causing him to change whereas at the beginning of the poem the poetic speaker thinks he controls his relationship with God at the end he sees himself as God's humble subject Ultimately the poetic speaker's feelings of utter separation from God at the end of the poem actually yield a sense that he has found God and has gained a sense of awe surrounding the Divine
