Montgomery, Chip Colwell, 2019-11-21 Between 1893 and 1903 Jesse H Bratley worked in Indian schools across five reservations in the American West As a teacher Bratley was charged with forcibly assimilating Native Americans through education Although tasked with eradicating their culture Bratley became entranced by it collecting artifacts and taking glass plate photographs to document the Native America he encountered Today the Denver Museum of Nature Science s Jesse H Bratley Collection consists of nearly 500 photographs and 1 000 pottery and basketry pieces beadwork weapons toys musical instruments and other objects traced to the S Klallam Lakota Sioux Cheyenne Arapaho Havasupai Hopi and Seminole peoples This visual and material archive serves as a lens through which to view a key moment in US history when Native Americans were sequestered onto reservation lands forced into unfamiliar labor economies and attacked for their religious practices Education the government hoped would be the final tool to permanently transform Indigenous bodies through moral instruction in Western dress foodways and living habits Yet Lindsay Montgomery and Chip Colwell posit that Bratley s collection constitutes objects of survivance things and images that testify not to destruction and loss but to resistance and survival Interwoven with documents and interviews Objects of Survivance illuminates how the US government sought to control Native Americans and how Indigenous peoples endured in the face of such oppression Rejecting the narrative that such objects preserve dying Native cultures Objects of

But Native workers persevered They rebuilt their communities fought to reclaim control of the reservation workplace and developed distinctive institutions to defend their cultural political and economic sovereignty As Waging Sovereignty illuminates wage work was a focal point of assimilationist efforts and in turn labor became a key factor in Native workers anti colonial struggle The Continuing Revolution Robert Weible,1991 Machinery Lester Gray French,1910
