Materials for High Temperature Power Generation and Process Plant Applications Andrew Strang, 2026-02-20
Materials Congress 98 Frontiers in Material Science and Technology organised by the Institute of Materials was held from the 6 to 8 April 1998 at the Royal Agricultural College Cirencester This event which was attended by more than 450 delegates from academia and industry consisted of technical sessions dealing with materials issues involving rubbers polymers composites ceramics ferrous and nonferrous metals and alloys in applications ranging from medical prosthesis two advanced powerplant engineering These proceedings contain the 10 most important papers presented in the session of the Congress concerned with materials for high temperature powerplant and process plant applications organised by the institute of Materials High Temperature Materials Performance Committee The selected papers are largely in the form of critical reviews which not only highlight the development of materials to meet specific applications but also comment on solutions used for both current and future applications These reviews not only discussed the evolution of advanced materials for high temperature power and process plant applications but also indicate the developments in materials which must take place to achieve the higher efficiency and environmentally acceptable plant for the 21st century and beyond Mechanical Behaviour of Materials Dominique François, André Pineau, André Zaoui, 2012-12-24 Designing new structural materials extending lifetimes and guarding against fracture in service are among the preoccupations of engineers and to deal with these they need to have command of the mechanics of material behaviour This ought to reflect in the training of students In this respect the first volume of this work deals with elastic elastoplastic elastoviscoplastic and viscoelastic behaviours this second volume continues with fracture mechanics and damage and with contact mechanics friction and wear As in Volume I the treatment links the active mechanisms on the microscopic scale and the laws of macroscopic behaviour Chapter I is an introduction to the various damage phenomena Chapter II gives the essential of fracture mechanics Chapter III is devoted to brittle fracture chapter IV to ductile fracture and chapter V to the brittle ductile transition Chapter VI is a survey of fatigue damage Chapter VII is devoted to hydrogen embrittlement and to environment assisted cracking chapter VIII to creep damage Chapter IX gives results of contact mechanics and a description of friction and wear mechanisms Finally chapter X treats damage in non metallic materials ceramics glass concrete polymers wood and composites The volume includes many explanatory diagrams and illustrations A third volume will include exercises allowing deeper understanding of the subjects treated in the first two volumes Handbook on bentonite-bonded moulding material Werner Tilch, Michael Franke, Hartmut Polzin, 2020-02-27 According to estimates modern foundries in Germany Europe and worldwide replace about 70 % of their lost moulds with moulds made of bentonite bonded materials The main mould components are quartz sand bentonite and water These components are compacted in one of the most productive procedures in the foundry One of the main advantages of this moulding material system is the ability to restore the bonding power of most of the material This ability creates a moulding material circulation system This system and the use of mostly inorganic moulding materials make this creation of moulds the most environmentally friendly choice for the cast part production Because of this circulation of moulding materials and specifically because of the bentonite water bonding system the preparation of moulds made from bentonite bonded moulding materials is very different from making moulds and cores using materials with chemical binders This manual describes the handling and preparation of bentonite bonded moulding materials as well as the moulding material recovery and re use after forming the cast part

Behaviour of Defects at High Temperature R. A. Ainsworth, R. P. Skelton, 1993-04-15 A collection of papers presented at the international conference on behaviour defects at high temperatures Topics covered include basic observations of deformation and damage damage modelling and the initiation of short cracks thermo mechanical testing including notches parameters for creep fatigue crack growth and assessment code development

Nuclear Materials for Fission Reactors H. Matzke, G. Schumacher, 2012-12-02 This volume brings together 47 papers from scientists involved in the fabrication of new nuclear fuels in basic research of nuclear materials their application and technology as well as in computer codes and modelling of fuel behaviour The main emphasis is on progress in the development of non oxide fuels besides reporting advances in the more conventional oxide fuels The two currently performed large reactor safety programmes CORA and PHEBUS FP are described in invited lectures The contributions review basic property measurements as well as the present state of fuel performance modelling The performance of today's nuclear fuel hence UO₂ at high burnup is also reviewed with particular emphasis on the recently observed phenomenon of grain subdivision in the cold part of the oxide fuel at high burnup the so called rim effect Similar phenomena can be simulated by ion implantation in order to better elucidate the underlying mechanism and reviews on high resolution electron microscopy provide further information The papers will provide a useful treatise of views ideas and new results for all those scientists and engineers involved in the specific questions of current nuclear waste management
