Climate Change Adaptation in the Adriatic Coastal Areas Eleonora Gioia,2024-09-25 This book presents the best practices necessary to embed climate change adaptation in the planning processes among the Adriatic coastal communities Six coastal regions which are distributed in the Northern Central and Southern Adriatic Basin in Italy and Croatia were taken as reference areas The book also introduces the state of the art climate change adaptation strategies envisioned or implemented at national and regional governance levels in Europe Additional details at the sub regional scale were included in the analysis where possible Moreover these strategies were compared to the current and future climate trends on the Adriatic scale in order to concentrate adaptation efforts on the expected risks Based on the collected strategies integrated with a further literature review extended to areas outside the Adriatic Basin the book promotes a novel database of adaptation actions that includes targets actors expected results and the timing for implementation Such a database called the Climate Menu is publicly available on a web platform designed for the needs of public authorities and other stakeholders to undertake the reduction of climate risks One-Volume Libraries: Composite and Multiple-Text Manuscripts Michael

Friedrich,Cosima Schwarke,2016-11-07 Composite and multiple text manuscripts are traditionally studied for their individual texts but recent trends in codicology have paved the way for a more comprehensive approach Manuscripts are unique artefacts which reveal how they were produced and used as physical objects While multiple text manuscripts codicologically are to be considered as production units i e they were originally planned and realized in order to carry more than one text composites consist of formerly independent codicological units and were put together at a later stage with intentions that might be completely different from those of its original parts Both sub types of manuscripts are still sometimes called miscellanies a term relating to the texts only The codicological difference is important for reconstructing why and how these manuscripts which in many cases resemble or contain a small library were produced and used Contributions on the manuscript cultures of China India Africa the Islamic world and European traditions lead not only to the conclusion that one volume libraries have been produced in many manuscript cultures but allow also for the identification of certain types of uses
