Comparing Voting Systems:

Comparing Voting Systems Hannu Nurmi, 2012-12-06 In many contexts of everyday life we find ourselves faced with the problem of reconciling the views of several persons These problems are usually solved by resorting to some opinion aggregating procedure like voting Very often the problem is thought of as being solved after the decision to take a vote has been made and the ballots have been counted Most official decision making bodies have formally instituted procedures of voting but in informal groups such procedures are typically chosen in casu Curiously enough people do not seem to pay much attention to which particular procedure is being resorted to as long as some kind of voting takes place As we shall see shortly the procedure being used often makes a great difference to the voting outcomes Thus the Question arises as to which voting procedure is best This book is devoted to a discussion of this problem in the light of various criteria of optimality We shall deal with a number of procedures that have been proposed for use or are actually in use in voting contexts The aim of this book is to give an evaluation of the virtues and shortcomings of these procedures On the basis of this evaluation the reader will hopefully be able to determine which procedure is optimal for the decision setting that he or she has in mind

Wilcox, 2009 The mix of voting methods and systems that were used in the 2006 general election varied across states territories and the District and this mix is not expected to change substantially for the 2008 general election This variety is due to several factors but particularly the degree of influence that these governments have exerted over local jurisdictions in selecting systems In establishing their voting environments states territories and the District reported approving or otherwise certifying their systems against requirements and described largely similar approaches in doing so Further they reported facing some of the same challenges such as ensuring that vendors meet requirements and completing the approval process on time and identified steps they have taken to address these challenges Comparing Nations Vaughn F.
