The Virtual Window Anne Friedberg, 2009-02-13 From the Renaissance idea of the painting as an open window to the nested windows and multiple images on today's cinema television and computer screens a cultural history of the metaphoric literal and virtual window As we spend more and more of our time staring at the screens of movies televisions computers and handheld devices windows full of moving images texts and icons how the world is framed has become as important as what is in the frame In The Virtual Window Anne Friedberg examines the window as metaphor as architectural component and as an opening to the dematerialized reality we see on the screen In De pictura 1435 Leon Battista Alberti famously instructed painters to consider the frame of the painting as an open window Taking Alberti's metaphor as her starting point Friedberg tracks shifts in the perspectival paradigm as she gives us histories of the architectural window developments in glass and transparency and the emerging apparatuses of photography cinema television and digital imaging Single point perspective Alberti's metaphorical window has long been challenged by modern painting modern architecture and moving image technologies And yet notes Friedberg for most of the twentieth century the dominant form of the moving image was a single image in a single frame The fractured modernism exemplified by cubist painting for example remained largely confined to experimental avant garde work On the computer screen however where multiple windows coexist and overlap perspective may have met its end In this wide ranging book Friedberg considers such topics as the framed view of the camera obscura Le Corbusier's mandates for the architectural window Eisenstein's opinions on the shape of the movie screen and the multiple images and nested windows commonly displayed on screens today The Virtual Window proposes a new logic of visibility framed and virtual an architecture not only of space but of time

Hyper/Text/Theory George P. Landow, 1994-12-05 In his widely acclaimed book Hypertext George P. Landow described a radically new information technology and its relationship to the work of such literary theorists as Jacques Derrida and Roland Barthes Now Landow has brought together a distinguished group of authorities to explore more fully the implications of hypertextual reading for contemporary literary theory Among the contributors Charles Ess uses the work of Jürgen Habermas and the Frankfurt School to examine hypertext's potential for true democratization Stuart Moulthrop turns to Deleuze and Guattari as a point of departure for a study of the relation of hypertext and political power Espen Aarseth places hypertext within a framework created by other forms of electronic textuality David Kolb explores what hypertext implies for philosophy and philosophical discourse Jane Yellowlees Douglas Gunnar Liestol and Mireille Rosello use contemporary theory to come to terms with hypertext narrative Terrence Harpold investigates the hypertextual fiction of Michael Joyce Drawing on Derrida Lacan and Wittgenstein Gregory Ulmer offers an example of the new form of writing hypertextuality demands

The Language of New Media Lev Manovich,2002-02-22 A stimulating eclectic account of new media that finds its origins in old media particularly the cinema In this book Lev Manovich offers the first systematic and rigorous theory of new media He places new media within the histories of visual and media cultures of the last few centuries He discusses new media's reliance on conventions of old media such as the rectangular frame and mobile camera and shows how new media works create the illusion of reality address the viewer and represent space He also analyzes categories and forms unique to new media such as interface and database Manovich uses concepts from film theory art history literary theory and computer science and also develops new theoretical constructs such as cultural interface spatial montage and cinegratography The theory and history of cinema play a particularly important role in the book Among other topics Manovich discusses parallels between the histories of cinema and of new media digital cinema screen and montage in cinema and in new media and historical ties between avant garde film and new media

Complexity Andrea Gleiniger,Georg Vrachliotis,2012-11-05 Digitalization has transformed the discourse of architecture that discourse is now defined by a wealth of new terms and concepts that previously either had no meaning or had different meanings in the context of architectural theory and design Its concepts and strategies are increasingly shaped by influences emerging at the intersection with scientific and cultural notions from modern information technology The series Context Architecture seeks to take a critical selection of concepts that play a vital role in the current discourse and put them up for discussion When Vitruvius described the architect as a uomo universale he gave rise to the architect's conception of him or herself as a generalist who shapes a complex reality The architectural concept of complexity however failed to keep pace with industrial and social reality becoming instead an increasingly formal and superficial notion that could ultimately be applied to almost anything Against it architectural modernism set the watchword of simplification less is more In this situation Robert Venturi reintroduced the notion of complexity into architectural discourse his goal was not just to restore the complexity of architectonic forms and their history but also to explore the concrete reality of the existing built environment Today it is complexity studies with their starting point in physics that define the current approach to the concept of complexity They have established a new connection between the natural sciences and information technology and have thus become a central premise of computer based approaches to design
