Statistics in Medical Research E.A. Gehan, N.A. Lemak, 2012-10-23 In 1890 General Francis A Walker president of both the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the American Statistical Association wrote There is reason to wish that all citizens from the highest to the lowest might undergo so much of training in statistics as should enable them to detect the errors lurking in quantitative statements regarding social and economic matters which may be addressed to them as voters or as critics of public policies E A Walker 1890 reprinted in Noether 1989 It has been more than a century since Walker stated his wish but progress has been slow just as advancement in the establishment of statistical principles and methodology has been laborious and difficult over the centuries We have tried to describe the milestones in this development and how each generation of scientists built on the heritage and foundations laid by their predecessors Many historians dismiss the great man theory which alleges that giant leaps of human knowledge are made by great thinkers who transcend the boundaries of their times great scientists don't leap outside their time but somewhere else in their own time Hevly 1990 We found this to be the case in the history of statistics Even the innovative writings of Karl Pearson and Sir Ronald Fisher that became the foundation of modern mathematical statistics were the outcome of two centuries of antecedent ideas and information
