Between Pictures:

Discorrelated Images Shane Denson, 2020-09-18 In Discorrelated Images Shane Denson examines how computer generated digital images displace and transform the traditional spatial and temporal relationships that viewers had with conventional analog forms of cinema Denson analyzes works ranging from the Transformers series and Blade Runner 2049 to videogames and multimedia installations to show how what he calls discorrelated images images that do not correlate with the abilities and limits of human perception produce new subjectivities affects and potentials for perception and action Denson's theorization suggests that new media theory and its focus on technological development must now be inseparable from film and cinema theory There's more at stake in understanding discorrelated images Denson contends than just a reshaping of cinema the development of new technical imaging processes and the evolution of film and media studies discorrelated images herald a transformation of subjectivity itself and are essential to our ability to comprehend nonhuman agency

Grammatology of Images Sigrid Weigel, 2022-08-16 Grammatology of Images radically alters how we approach images Instead of asking for the history power or essence of images Sigrid Weigel addresses imaging as such The book considers how something a visible gets transformed into an image Weigel scrutinizes the moment of mis en appaition of making an appearance and the process of concealment that accompanies any imaging Weigel reinterprets Derrida's and Freud's concept of the trace as that which must be thought before something exists In doing so she illuminates the threshold between traces and iconic images between something immaterial and its pictorial representation Chapters alternate between general accounts of the line the index the effigy and the cult image and case studies from the history of science art politics and religion involving faces as indicators of emotion caricatures as effigies of defamation and angels as embodiments of transcendental ideas Weigel's approach to images illuminates fascinating unexpected correspondences between premodern and contemporary image practices between the history of religion and the modern sciences and between things that are and are not understood as art

Developmental Psychology: From Infancy to Development Fiona White, David Livesey, Brett Hayes, 2012-08-20 Developmental Psychology: From infancy to adulthood 3rd edition continues to bring together a balanced focus on Australian and international research contributions in developmental psychology Students and lecturers alike will find this text addresses the issues of lifespan development in a rigorous and challenging way using a thematic rather than chronological approach International and national research on graduate attributes consistently identifies critical thinking as one of the most important skills for psychology students The inclusion of Critical Thinking for Group Discussion at the end of each chapter is designed to encourage students in the development of this key skill These questions help students develop the ability to engage in discussions on truth and validity and evaluate the relative importance of ideas and data Students learn by doing and this is encouraged through interactive features such as Stop and Review Research Focus Boxes and Practical Exercises which engage them in group discussion and challenge them to delve into complex and cross domain analysis of lifespan development Concept maps at the start of each chapter provide students with a visual snapshot of the chapter content How Animals See the World Olga F. Lazareva, Toru Shimizu, Edward A. Wasserman, 2012-04-19 The visual world of animals is highly diverse and often very different from that of humans This book provides an extensive review of the latest behavioral and neurobiological research on animal vision detailing fascinating species similarities and differences in visual processing Transactions of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, 1919 Academy Notes Buffalo Fine Arts Academy, 1907 Radio Broadcast, 1925 Publications, 1897 Stimulus Class Formation in Humans and Animals T.R. Zentall, P.M. Smeets, 1996-10-24 Stimulus class formation has been studied independently by two groups of researchers One group has come out of a learning theory approach while the second has developed out of a behavior analytic tradition The purpose of the present volume is to further establish the ties between these two research areas while allowing for differences in approach to the questions asked The book is loosely organized around four themes The first two sections deal with what constitutes functional and equivalence classes in animals and humans In the third section the authors attempt to identify stimulus control variables that contribute to the formation of equivalence classes The last section deals with the complex issue of the role of verbal behavior in equivalence classes The goal of the book is to provide the reader with a better understanding of the current state of research and theory in stimulus class formation It is also hoped that it will stimulate research into how and under what conditions stimulus classes can form Life Skills at Home Kim Barker, 1998-12
