Through Environmental Design David Joseph Jusiewicz,2011 The purpose of this study is to measure and compare the calls for service at the apartment communities participating in the Crime Free Multi Housing Program in the belief that a reduction in calls for service should translate to a reduction in crime The review of the existing data is a cross sectional pre post study of secondary data using calls for service This method is preferred as it will represent the actual number of calls handled at each surveyed apartment community Therefore the conclusions provided with this data are not based on a complex statistical manipulation rather it provides a snap shot and serves as an early indicator to the body of knowledge of Crime Prevention through Environmental Design CPTED so that others may follow and continue the research It is evident from the data that the implementation of the CPTED principles and the apartment community participation in the Crime Free
