Communication in Cancer Care F. Stiefel, 2006-09-13 Communication as the Bridge to Hope and Healing in Cancer Care Cancer is often seen as precipitating an existence specific to patients of all ages diverse cultures trial crisis a crisis of spirit and an opportunity and lifestyles Perhaps two of the most we for meaning This is true not only for the patient developed areas in communication in cancer with cancer and his or her family and loved ones care relate to shared decision making research but also interestingly enough for oncologists and the effectiveness of communication skills and cancer care providers For the patient the training of cancer care providers The field of challenges are dealing with fear and uncertainty communication research and training is thus maintaining a balance between hope and de quite broad and still in development although spair comprehending information and enacting much has been accomplished as is illustrated in shared decision making living with choices and this textbook for too many finding a way to accept death For This text Communication in Cancer Care the family the challenges are equally daunting edited by F Stiefel represents one of the most finding a way to support their loved one and help comprehensive as well as clinically relevant them maintain hope advocate on their behalf ited volumes on the subject of communication help collect and integrate information This must in cancer care to appear to date

Patient-centered Communication in Cancer Care Ronald Epstein, 2007 Handbook of Communication in Oncology and Palliative Care David Kissane, 2010-03-25 Communication is a core skill for medical professionals when treating patients and cancer and palliative care present some of the most challenging clinical situations This book provides a comprehensive curriculum to help oncology specialists optimize their communication skills Handbook of Communication and Cancer Care Dan O'Hair, Gary L. Kreps, Lisa Daniel Sparks, 2007 The Handbook of Communication and Cancer Care is a major new compendium of state of the art readings concerning the powerful influences of human and mediated communication to enable healthcare consumers and providers to get the most out of cancer care An extraordinary number of communication issues must be considered in the conduct of cancer care including gathering and interpreting relevant health information eliciting coordination among interdependent patients providers and family members and or caregivers and providing social support and promoting psychosocial adjustment Health Literacy and Communication Strategies in Oncology National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Health Care Services, Roundtable on Health Literacy, National Cancer Policy Forum, 2020-03-10 Health literacy is a critical skill for engaging in healthy behaviors to reduce disease risk and improve health outcomes across the continuum of cancer care However estimates suggest that more than one third of the U S adult population has low health literacy and nearly half of all patients with cancer have difficulty understanding information about their disease or treatment Low health literacy among patients with cancer is associated with poor health and treatment outcomes including lower adherence to treatment higher rates of missed appointments and an increased risk of hospitalization Low health literacy can also impede informed decision making especially as cancer care becomes increasingly complex and as patients and their families take more active roles in treatment decisions To examine opportunities to improve communication across the cancer care continuum the National Cancer Policy Forum collaborated with the Roundtable on Health Literacy to host a workshop Health Literacy and Communication Strategies in Oncology July 15 16 2019 in Washington DC Patients patient advocates clinicians and researchers representatives of health care organizations academic medical centers insurers and federal agencies explored the challenges of achieving effective communication in cancer care This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions of the workshop New Challenges in Communication with Cancer Patients Antonella Surbone, Matjaž Zwitter, Mirjana Rajer, Richard Stiefel, 2012-08-23 The relationship between oncologists and their cancer patients is rapidly evolving Oncologists and other cancer professionals master new anticancer and supportive treatment options while working under increasing economic pressure and time constraints and are often unprepared to deal with all the challenges of their new position in a therapeutic relationship with cancer patients and families Good communication is as essential as are modern laboratory tests and sophisticated diagnostics to achieve the best clinical results This book updates the evolution of truth telling and communication patterns worldwide and offers insights into the recent trends and emerging challenges in communication with cancer patients and families New Challenges in Communication with Cancer Patients is an invaluable resource to medical professionals educators and patients in establishing a strong and effective partnership built on trust and mutual understanding Communication in Cancer Care Kathryn Nicholson Perry, Mary Burgess, 2003-01-17 This practical and concise publication explains how busy health professionals can integrate emotional support into the services offered to people with cancer Helps health professionals to develop the communication skills needed to understand and assist those affected by cancer Discusses the social and psychological problems faced by people with cancer Gives detailed information about the qualities and skills needed to act as a helper Provides practical tips on how to learn the skills discussed

Communication in Cancer Care -Patient Version ,2021 The Art of Conversation in Cancer Care Richard P. McQuellon, Michael A. Cowan, 2021-09-23 Every day thousands of people are diagnosed with cancer or other life threatening illnesses Despite the best of intentions it is not always easy to communicate well under these circumstances or find deep empathy for something one has never experienced When is it best to speak and when to be silent How can someone provide real comfort and how can relationships with loved ones facing serious illness be enhanced in this most difficult time Written by a psychosocial oncologist and psychologist theologian The Art of Conversation in Cancer Care Lessons for Caregivers offers practical suggestions for health professionals families and friends about talking to one who has cancer This revised and updated second edition is organized around the themes of mortal time and healing conversation with cancer patients and their caregivers Mortal time is not so much a specific period but rather the psychological experience encountering mortality that often accompanies the diagnosis of cancer The first section of the book articulates the many ways people experience mortal time including a range of adaptive and less adaptive methods Next the basic elements of healing conversation are delineated with an emphasis on the hope that can spring from talking with a trusted companion Empathy listening carefully and responding thoughtfully and compassionately are discussed In the final section the authors offer guidance for caregivers This section includes material on the risks and costs of companionship as well as personal virtues that help a person navigate the demands of mortal time with their loved one The authors discuss resilience and the consequences of absorbing suffering including empathy shift where the cancer caregiver becomes less empathic with minor illnesses in others They conclude with the power of healing conversation in mortal time as a source of hope Throughout numerous patient vignettes illustrate the art of conversation in cancer medicine
