Community Journalism Relentlessly Local:

Community Journalism Jock Lauterer, 2009-11-20 No matter how ambitious they may be most novice journalists don't get their start at the New York Times They get their first jobs at smaller local community newspapers that require a different style of reporting than the detached impersonal approach expected of major international publications As the primary textbook and sourcebook for the teaching and practice of local journalism and newspaper publishing in the United States Community Journalism addresses the issues a small town newspaper writer or publisher is likely to face Jock Lauterer covers topics ranging from why community journalism is important and distinctive to hints for reporting and writing with a community spin to design production photojournalism and staff management This third edition introduces new chapters on adjusting to changing demographics in the community and best practices for community papers Updated with fresh examples throughout and considering the newest technologies in editing and photography this edition of Community Journalism provides the very latest of what every person working at a small newspaper needs to know Gatekeeping in Transition

Timothy Vos, François Heinderyckx, 2015-06-08 Much of what journalism scholars thought they knew about gatekeeping about how it is that news turns out the way it does has been called into question by the recent seismic economic and technological shifts in journalism These shifts come with new kinds of gatekeepers new routines of news production new types of news organizations new means for shaping the news and new channels of news distribution Given these changing realities some might ask does gatekeeping still matter In this internationally minded anthology of new gatekeeping research contributors attempt to answer that question Gatekeeping in Transition examines the role of gatekeeping in the twenty first century from organizational institutional and social perspectives across digital and traditional media and argues for its place in contemporary scholarship about news and journalism Media and Social Inequality John Pollock, 2014-06-11 This book is among the first to systematically explore the impact of community inequality on reporting political and social change Although most journalism scholars are still fascinated by the impact of media on society Media and Social Inequality explores the reverse perspective the impact of society on media Using a community structure approach and rejecting the perspective that studies of media and audiences can be reduced to the individual level of psychological phenomena all contributions examine connections between community level macro characteristics and variations in the coverage of critical issues This innovative book differs from previous community structure volumes in two ways First contributions explore a far wider range of community characteristics by employing creative methodologies modern archives and databases that facilitate larger more diverse samples multilevel and longitudinal analyses composite measures of both content and editorial judgment new technologies and social network analysis Second a traditional emphasis on media as instruments of political and social control is replaced by media as potential mirrors of social change exploring bottom up measures of vulnerability concentrated disadvantage and ethnic diversity pluralism The volume contains two original chapters one on nationwide US coverage of the Occupy movement in the expanded introduction and another on nationwide US coverage of universal health care This book was originally published as a special issue of Mass Communication and Society Mass Communication

Ralph E. Hanson, 2025-01-07 The best selling Mass Communication Living in a Media World presents a highly accessible introduction to mass communication that equips students with the critical thinking skills to become savvy media consumers To help students better retain the material author Ralph E Hanson uses a storytelling approach that weaves in examples drawn from everyday life Readers are encouraged to consider the media industry from the inside out and in doing so discover the many dimensions of mass communication that operate in our society This newly revised Ninth Edition highlights the aftermath of how the media industry and media consumers have evolved since the global pandemic closely examining the changing the face of media today Community Media and Identity in Ireland Jack Rosenberry, 2017-10-10 This book explores how Ireland's community media outlets reflect and shape identity at the local level While aspects of its culture date back centuries the nation state of Ireland is less than one hundred years old Because of this and other elements of the island's history Irish identity is a contested topic and the island is a place where culture identity and geography are tightly intertwined By addressing how community media serve as agents for community building the book examines how they in turn influence the way individuals connect with their communities Audience Feedback in the News Media Bill Reader, 2015-02-11 As long as there has been news media there has been audience feedback This book provides the first definitive history of the evolution of audience feedback from the early newsbooks of the 16th century to the rough and tumble online forums of the modern age In addition to tracing the historical development of audience feedback the book considers how news media has changed its approach to accommodating audience participation and explores how audience feedback can serve the needs of both individuals and collectives in democratic society Reader writes from a position of authority having worked as a letters to the editor editor and has written numerous research articles and professional essays on the topic over the past 15 years Creating Citizens Kelly D. Alley, 2016-05-15 Conclusion Brigitta R Brunner Contributors

The News Untold Michael Clay Carey, 2017 Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication Tankard Book Award winner Weatherford Award winner nonfiction The News Untold offers an important new perspective on media narratives about poverty in Appalachia It focuses on how small town reporters and editors in some of the region's poorest communities decide what aspects of poverty are news how their audiences interpret those decisions and how those two related processes help shape broader understandings of economic need and local social responsibility Focusing on patterns of both media creation and consumption The News Untold shows how a lack of constructive news coverage of economic need can make it harder for the poor to voice their concerns Critical and inclusive news coverage of poverty at the local level Michael Clay Carey writes can help communities start to look past old stereotypes and attitudes and encourage solutions that incorporate broader sets of community voices Such an effort will require journalists and community leaders to reexamine

some of the professional traditions and social views that often shape what news looks like in small towns Grassroots
