Eugène Buttigieg, 2009-01-01 Although it is commonly assumed that consumers benefit from the application of competition law this is not necessarily always the case Economic efficiency is paramount thus competition law in Europe and antitrust law in the United States are designed primarily to protect business competitors and in Europe to promote market integration and it is only incidentally that such law may also serve to protect consumers That is the essential starting point of this penetrating critique The author explores the extent to which US antitrust law and EC competition law adequately safeguard consumer interests Specifically he shows how the two jurisdictions have gone about evaluating collusive practices abusive conduct by dominant firms and merger activity and how the policies thus formed have impacted upon the promotion of consumer interests He argues that unless consumer interests are directly and specifically addressed in the assessment process maximization of consumer welfare is not sufficiently achieved Using rigorous analysis he develops legal arguments that can accomplish such goals as the following replace the economic theory of consumer welfare with a principle of consumer well being build consumer benefits into specific areas of competition policy assess competition cases so that income distribution effects are more beneficial to consumers and control mergers in such a way that efficiencies are passed directly to consumers The author argues that in the last analysis the promotion of consumer well being should be the sole or at least the primary goal of any antitrust regime Lawyers and scholars interested in the application and development and reform of competition law and policy will welcome this book They will find not only a fresh approach to interpretation and practice in their field comparing and contrasting two major systems of competition law but also an extremely lucid analysis of the various economic arguments used to highlight the consumer welfare enhancing or welfare reducing effects of business practices

Competition Law and Consumer Protection Katalin Judit Cseres, 2005-01-01 The assumption that competition law and consumer protection are mutually reinforcing is rarely challenged The theory seems uncontroversial However because a positive interaction between the two is presumed to be self evident the frequent conflicts that do in fact arise are often dealt with on an ad hoc basis with no overarching legal authority There is a clear need for a detailed and coherent understanding of exactly where the complements and tensions between the two policy areas exist Dr Cseres in depth analysis provides that understanding Proceeding from the dual perspective of law and economics that is of justice fairness and reasonableness on the one hand and of efficiency of the other she fully considers such underlying issues as the following the role of competition law and consumer law in a free market economy the notion of consumer welfare the effect of the modernisation of EC competition law for consumers economics theories of information bounded rationality and transaction costs the special significance of vertical agreements and merger control and how consumers are affected by information asymmetries The ultimate focus of the book is on current and emerging EC law in which a rapprochement between the two areas seems to be under way Dr Cseres provides a knowledgeable guide to the various strands of theory policy and jurisprudence that she shows ought to be taken into account in the process including schools of thought and law and policy experience in both Europe and the United States A special chapter on Hungary where post 1989 law and practice reveal a fresh and distinctly forward looking understanding of the matter is one of the book s most extraordinary features Competition Law and Consumer Protection stands alone as a committed contribution to bridging a gap in legal knowledge the significance of which grows daily It will be of immeasurable value to a wide range of professionals from academics and researchers to officials policymakers and practitioners in competition law consumer protection advocacy economic theory and planning business administration and various pertinent government authorities
