Franklin,2021-02-11 The Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union was an agreement among the 13 original states of the United States of America that served as its first constitution 1 It was approved after much debate between July 1776 and November 1777 by the Second Continental Congress on November 15 1777 and sent to the states for ratification The Articles of Confederation came into force on March 1 1781 after being ratified by all 13 states A guiding principle of the Articles was to preserve the independence and sovereignty of the states The weak central government established by the Articles received only those powers which the former colonies had recognized as belonging to king and parliament 2 The document provided clearly written rules for how the states league of friendship would be organized During the ratification process the Congress looked to the Articles for guidance as it conducted business directing the war effort conducting diplomacy with foreign states addressing territorial issues and dealing with Native American relations Little changed politically once the Articles of Confederation went into effect as ratification did little more than legalize what the Continental Congress had been doing That body was renamed the Congress of the Confederation but most Americans continued to call it the Continental Congress since its organization remained the same 2 As the Confederation Congress attempted to govern the continually growing American states delegates discovered that the limitations placed upon the central government rendered it ineffective at doing so As the government's weaknesses became apparent especially after Shays Rebellion some prominent political thinkers in the fledgling union began asking for changes to the Articles Their hope was to create a stronger government Initially some states met to deal with their trade and economic problems However as more states became interested in meeting to change the Articles a meeting was set in Philadelphia on May 25 1787 This became the Constitutional Convention It was quickly agreed that changes would not work and instead the entire Articles needed to be replaced 3 On March 4 1789 the government under the Articles was replaced with the federal government under the Constitution 4 The new Constitution provided for a much stronger federal government by establishing a chief executive the President courts and taxing powers

(annotated) Benjamin Franklin, 2021-02-16 Articles of Confederation first U S constitution 1781 89 which served as a bridge between the initial government by the Continental Congress of the Revolutionary period and the federal government provided under the U S Constitution of 1787 Because the experience of overbearing British central authority was vivid in colonial minds the drafters of the Articles deliberately established a confederation of sovereign states The Articles were written in 1776 77 and adopted by the Congress on November 15 1777 However the document was not fully ratified by the states until March 1 1781 On paper the Congress had power to regulate foreign affairs war and the postal service and to appoint military officers control Indian affairs borrow money determine the value of coin and issue bills of credit In reality however the Articles gave the Congress no power to enforce its requests to the states for money or troops and by the end of 1786 governmental effectiveness had broken down Nevertheless some solid accomplishments had been achieved certain state claims to western lands were settled and the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 established the fundamental pattern of evolving government in the territories north of the Ohio River Equally important the Confederation provided the new nation with instructive experience in self government under a written document In revealing their own weaknesses the Articles paved the way for the Constitutional Convention of 1787 and the present form of U S government
