Information Cultures in the Digital Age Matthew Kelly, Jared Bielby, 2016-08-08 For several decades Rafael Capurro has been at the forefront of defining the relationship between information and modernity through both phenomenological and ethical formulations In exploring both of these themes Capurro has re-vivified the transcultural and intercultural expressions of how we bring an understanding of information to bear on scientific knowledge production and intermediation Capurro has long stressed the need to look deeply into how we contextualize the information problems that scientific society creates for us and to re-incorporate a pragmatic dimension into our response that provides a balance to the cognitive turn in information science With contributions from 35 scholars from 15 countries Information Cultures in the Digital Age focuses on the culture and philosophy of information information ethics the relationship of information to message the historic and semiotic understanding of information the relationship of information to power and the future of information education This Festschrift seeks to celebrate Rafael Capurro s important contribution to a global dialogue on how information conceptualisation use and technology impact human culture and the ethical questions that arise from this dynamic relationship

Bibliographic Classification Joacim Hansson,2025-11-18 A novel analysis that understands bibliographic classification systems as autonomous documents and not just as information retrieval tools Bibliographical classification systems are developed as tools for the retrieval of documents and information in libraries or bibliographical catalogs Traditionally they have also served as organizing principles for library shelving As with most kinds of classification bibliographic classification systems are products of their time encoding the beliefs and values of the cultures in which they are created In Bibliographic Classification Joacim Hansson addresses the connection between classification and society in a new way by analyzing bibliographic classification systems not just as information retrieval tools but as autonomous documents using a theoretical foundation from Document Studies Information Science and Organizational Theory The book advances its argument in three case studies the Universal Decimal Classification read as part of progressive social movements in early twentieth century Belgium the Swedish SAB system developed in the late 1910s read as a formulation of cultural integrity and nationalist reformulation and Jewish bibliographic classification practice with specific focus on how to address historical Jewish identity and the Holocaust in Judaica collections

European Modernism and the Information Society W. Boyd Rayward,2017-05-15 Uniting a team of international and interdisciplinary scholars this volume considers the views of early twentieth century European thinkers on the creation dissemination and management of publicly available information Interdisciplinary in perspective the volume reflects the nature of the thinkers discussed including Otto Neurath Patrick Geddes the English Fabians Paul Otlet Wilhelm Ostwald and H G Wells The work also charts the interest since the latter part of the nineteenth century in finding new ways to think about and to manage the growing body of available information in order to achieve aims such as the advancement of Western civilization the alleviation of inequalities across classes and countries and the promotion of peaceful coexistence between nations In doing so the contributors provide a novel historical context for assessing widely held assumptions about today s globalized post modern information society This volume will interest all who are curious about the creation of a modern networked information society

Exploring Education for Digital Librarians Sue Myburgh,Anna Maria Tamaro,2013-04-17 Exploring Education for Digital Librarians provides a refreshing perspective on the discipline and profession of Library and Information Science LIS with a focus on preparing students for careers as librarians who can deal with present and future digital information environments A re examination of the knowledge base of the field combined with a proposed theoretical structure for LIS provide the basis for this work which also examines competencies for practice as well as some of the international changes in the nature of higher education The authors finally suggest a model that could be used internationally to educate librarians for their new roles and social responsibilities in a digitised networked world The twelve chapters of this book cover key issues in education for digital librarians including the necessity of regenerating the profession current contexts previous research on education for digital librarians understanding the dimensions of the discipline and profession of librarianship and the distinctions between them the social purpose of librarianship as a profession and the theoretical framework which supports the practice of the profession a brief analysis of curriculum design pedagogies and teaching methods and a glimpse of the proactive and important future role of librarianship in society Considers the ubiquitous misunderstanding that technology can replace libraries and librarians Provides a theoretical view of the field which can contribute awareness of dimensions of the dilemmas which the discipline profession currently faces Presents a broad international perspective which provides a basis for a new model for LIS education

The Social Transcript Charles B. Osburn, 2009 Many glimpses into what might be called library philosophy are scattered throughout the literatures of library history and library and information science but none has coalesced as yet Conversely theories relative to the operation of libraries rather than relative to why their operations are necessary in the first place are exceedingly abundant At the heart of both resides function On the one hand the concept of a library reflects a rational social process its genesis and survival the result of each succeeding generation embracing the same core values as the one before At the same time practice in the library is bounded by both the experiences and expectations of the public and our choice and treatment of topic in our scholarly and professional literature Not surprisingly fundamental misunderstandings are shared among public scholar and librarian about what the library is and why it exists Adapting the work of Kenneth Boulding Charles Osburn presents a cogent well substantiated explanation of why the library refuses to cede its position as a cultural icon and how it not only continues but flourishes throughout the trials and errors of civilization
