Del Mar Nancy Hanks Ewing, Alice Goodkind, 1988      Del Mar Looking Back 1997, 1997      Looking Back Sir Seymour John Fortescue, 1920      Moving Forward, Looking Back Sarah M. Misemer, 2010 Many critical shifts in concepts of time and society's consciousness of modernity were derived from the railway and World Standard Time in the nineteenth century. These innovations restructured the way people viewed the world and dealt with public and private time. The forward projectile motion along a linear track mimicked the passage of public chronological time. Conversely the train also invoked a private nostalgic view of time as the traveler was yanked from his/her traditional view of the space-time continuum via the train's velocity. Travelers observed the landscape disappear in their backward glance from the window although the landscape and interior compartment's space remained stagnant. This optical illusion caused passengers to perceive the world in new ways. Thus the train unveils a conflictive blend of nostalgia and progress in the River Plate as these countries move forward but look back.
