Climate change is a global environmental issue that affects the entire planet. It is caused by the greenhouse effect, where the Earth's atmosphere traps heat from the sun, leading to a rise in global temperatures. This rise in temperature leads to a variety of climate change effects, including more frequent and severe weather events, rising sea levels, and the melting of glaciers and ice sheets. These effects can have a significant impact on the environment and human health. For example, rising sea levels can lead to coastal flooding and the displacement of millions of people. More frequent and severe weather events can lead to property damage, loss of life, and the destruction of infrastructure. The melting of glaciers and ice sheets can lead to a rise in sea levels, which can also lead to the displacement of millions of people.
