Automatic Affective Processing:

Automatic Affective Processing Jan De Houwer, 2001 This special issue provides an overview of some of the paradigms that are available to study automatic affective processing and presents the knowledge about affective processing that has been gained in recent years

An Investigation of Automatic Affective Processing Elizabeth Amanda Martin, 2013 An important mechanism in emotional functioning is automatic affective processing In Study 1 people with schizophrenia n 48 and a non psychiatric comparison group n 28 completed an affective priming and cognitive priming task Relative to controls people with schizophrenia exhibited decreased affective priming but increased cognitive priming In addition decreased affective priming was associated with increased anhedonia In contrast increased cognitive priming was associated with increased disorganized and negative speech symptoms Overall these results suggest that there is an automatic affective processing deficit in schizophrenia and this deficit is related to anhedonia In Study 2 the neural correlates of automatic affective priming were investigated Undergraduate participants n 21 completed the affective priming task with 2 different consistency proportions CP 80 and 50 For the 50 CP condition there appeared to be evidence of increased controlled processing In particular comparing congruent trials in the 80 and 50 CP conditions there was less priming related decreases in inferior frontal and inferior temporal regions and increased activation in the dmPFC emotional conflict region for the 50 CP condition Overall these results suggest that automatic affective processing is associated with increased semantic priming and decreased emotional conflict

Cognition and Emotion Jan De Houwer, Dirk Hermans, 2010-05-09 This book assembles a collection of state of the art reviews of the most important topics in cognition and emotion research emotion theories the perception and expression of emotion emotion regulation emotion and memory and emotion and attention

Aesthetics and Innovation Leonid Dorfman, Colin Martindale, Vladimir Petrov, 2007 In this book we attempted to gather together a set of chapters that describe new ways of approaching questions about aesthetics and innovation Rather than going over old ground the chapters describe attempts to break out in new directions The book begins with a description of von Ehrenfel TM s development of a Gestalt theory of aesthetics so evocative of the Vienna of 1900 that readers will wish that they had been there to experience the intellectual excitement and ends with a survey the very latest research on brain scan research on perception of art In between we encounter chapters as diverse as a description of cognitive effects on art perception and on the analogies between oscillations in art history and waves in the physical world About half of the book contains chapters by well known western psychological aestheticians and half chapters by Russian scholars many of whom will be new to western readers As well as describing new methods and results the chapters by Russian scholars will be novel to most western readers because the Russian perspective on aesthetics and innovation is rather different than the traditional western perspectives Looking at phenomena from new viewpoints never hurts and very often helps in science

Renée Assunta Botta,1998 Annual Review of Psychology Print&online,2003-02 Higher Stages of Human Development Charles Nathaniel Alexander, Ellen J. Langer,1990 Can significant advances in development occur after adolescence What are the highest possible states or stages of human development and how can they be realized These and related critical issues are addressed in this volume by leading researchers and theorists in adult development How we conceive of the endpoint or highest state of development is crucial because it shapes our understanding of the direction possibilities and mechanisms of human growth Even a decade ago most psychologists believed that qualitative advances in development did not occur after adolescence Based on recent research on adults however psychologists now question whether growth of fundamental human capacities necessarily culminates prior to adulthood This new volume explores a variety of endpoints beyond the ordinarily proposed limits of human development In addition to describing advanced forms of cognitive functioning contributors also discuss other domains integral to adult growth including affective moral self and consciousness development Emotions and Aggressive Behavior Georges Steffgen, Mario Gollwitzer,2007 The relationship between affective emotional processes and aggressive behavior has been a central topic of scientific interest in the aggression literature for decades Emotions are not merely epiphenomena of aggression they can be triggers amplifiers moderators or even ultimate goals of aggressive behavior Insights into the functional relation between emotions and aggression are of theoretical relevance and above all are crucial for finding solutions for efficient control prevention and reduction of aggression This book brings together leading experts from fields such as social personality developmental and physiological psychology presenting state of art research on this relationship The book describes assessment and treatment approaches as well as theoretical concepts and research findings concerning the interconnections between emotions and aggression Psychological Review James Mark Baldwin, James McKeen Cattell, Howard Crosby Warren, John Broadus
