A Self Made Monster:

Monsters by Trade Lisa Surwillo, 2014-06-11 Transatlantic studies have begun to explore the lasting influence of Spain on its former colonies and the surviving ties between the American nations and Spain In Monsters by Trade Lisa Surwillo takes a different approach explaining how modern Spain was literally made by its Cuban colony Long after the transatlantic slave trade had been abolished Spain continued to smuggle thousands of Africans annually to Cuba to work the sugar plantations Nearly a third of the royal income came from Cuban sugar and these profits underwrote Spain's modernization even as they damaged its international standing Surwillo analyzes a sampling of nineteenth century Spanish literary works that reflected metropolitan fears of the hold that slave traders and the slave economy more generally had over the political cultural and financial networks of power She also examines how the nineteenth century empire and the role of the slave trader are commemorated in contemporary tourism and literature in various regions in Northern Spain This is the first book to demonstrate the centrality of not just Cuba but the illicit transatlantic slave trade to the cultural life of modern Spain

Margaret Greenway McClelland, 1887 Cultural Sutures Lester D. Friedman, 2004-05-06 Medicine and the media exist in a unique symbiosis Increasingly health care consumers turn to media sources from news reports to Web sites to tv shows for information about diseases treatments pharmacology and important health issues And just as the media scour the medical terrain for news stories and plot lines those in the health care industry use the media to publicize legitimate stories and advance particular agendas The essays in Cultural Sutures delineate this deeply collaborative process by scrutinizing a broad range of interconnections between medicine and the media in print journalism advertisements fiction films television shows documentaries and computer technology In this volume scholars of cinema studies philosophy English sociology health care education women's studies bioethics and other fields demonstrate how the world of medicine engages and permeates the media that surround us Whether examining the press coverage of the Jack Kevorkian euthanasia controversy pondering

Murder Stories Paul Kaplan, 2012-01-16 Murder Stories engages with the current theoretical debate in death penalty research on the role of cultural commitments to American ideologies in the retention of capital punishment The central aim of the study is to illuminate the elusive yet powerful role of ideology in legal discourses Through analyzing the content and processes of death penalty narratives this research illuminates the covert life of the American Creed a nexus of ideologies liberty egalitarianism individualism populism and laissez faire said to be unique to the United States in the law Murder Stories draws on the entire record of California death sentence resulting trials from three large and diverse California counties for the years 1996 2004 as well as interviews with 26 capital caseworkers attorneys judges and investigators from the same counties Employing the theoretical framework proposed by Ewick and Silbey 1995 to study hegemonic and subversive narratives and also the ethnographic approach advocated by Amsterdam and Hertz 1992 to study the producers and processes of constructing legal narratives this book traces the ideological content carried within the stories told by everyday practitioners of capital punishment by investigating the content process and ideological implications of these narratives The central theoretical finding is that the narratives constructed by both prosecutors and defenders tend to instantiate rather than subvert the ideological tenets of the American Creed
