

Analysis of transference:

- Sandor Ferenczi stated that transference is universal phenomenon – a “special form of displacement”
- In psychoanalytic theory, transference occurs when a client projects feelings about someone else, particularly someone encountered in childhood, onto her therapist.
- There are three types of transference:
 - Positive transference
 - Negative transference
 - Sexualized transference

patterns of a patient's behavior extracted from transcripts of sessions. The emotion expressions that form the raw material of FRAMES result from the psychological processes that underlie Referential Activity, a measure of the capacity to express all manner of nonverbal experience, particularly emotional experience, in verbal form. The referential process mediates alteration of maladaptive emotion structures in psychoanalytic treatment. The present study serves as some of the strongest empirical evidence to date of the efficacy of psychoanalytic techniques.
