

Different Stages in Developmental Psychology

1- Infant

An infant or newborn is the first stage in developmental psychology. Now you might be thinking about what growth or change you will see at this stage. This is the stage where the child learns how to interact with and respond to others.

2- Toddler

A toddler is the age group between one and three years old. It is an important stage in the development of children. In this stage, children try to learn more about the world and how to master skills.

3- Preschoolers

This stage refers to the rapid growth and change where preschoolers come out of their shells and explore more about the outer world. This can be a crucial stage where children need proper care from their parents.

4- School-going children

School-going children between the ages of 6 and 12 develop a sense of self. At this stage, the children learn to make decisions about themselves. This is the beginning stage, where children try to learn from the things they see.

5- Adolescent

Adolescent age can be divided into three steps. Here, the individual grows up personally and learns to be independent. This step can provide major development, both mentally and physically. You will learn to deal with responsibilities and face major aging problems.

Developmental Processes:

Persons in Context Niall Bolger, 1988 Social changes including women's entry into the labour force and higher rates of divorce and remarriage dramatically altered family life and raised complex questions about how individuals develop in the ever-changing contexts of family, community, and society. The goal of this 1989 volume is to enhance our understanding of human development in an evolving social context. Featuring contributions by eminent scholars in developmental, clinical, and personality psychology, behavioural genetics, and sociology, Persons in Context: Developmental Processes presents advances in theory and research on two central topics: how environments influence individuals in the course of development and how individuals select and shape the very environments that influence their development. The volume assembles a theoretically convergent body of research on how individuals and environments are linked in the course of development, including studies of genetics, environment relations, social interactions, social interchanges in family systems, and linkages between the family and other major settings such as peer groups, communities, and the larger social structure.

New Principles in Developmental Processes Hisato Kondoh, Atsushi Kuroiwa, 2014-07-08 During the last decade, modern technologies have made a revolutionary change in developmental biology. The molecular and cellular processes in live embryos can now be visualized thanks to technologies using fluorescent proteins. The whole genome information of a wide range of animal species has now become available, confirming the common principles that operate in every species. These and other advances in our understanding of the developmental processes during embryogenesis and tissue regeneration have put forward new principles. Those new principles will also be important in the stem cell biology branched from developmental biology in order to generate a particular tissue by manipulating stem cells. This book is planned to introduce these new principles to readers who are working in developmental biology and/or stem cell biology fields with an emphasis on genetic and cellular processes.

Cultural Processes in Child Development Ann S. Masten, 1999-02 This volume explores cultural issues in child development which have come to be considered primary cross-cutting factors in every aspect of development. For cross-cultural, social, and developmental psychologists, anthropologists, and sociologists.

Applications of Nonlinear Dynamics To Developmental Process Modeling Karl M. Newell, Peter C.M. Molenaar, 2014-03-05 There has been an increasing interest in the application of dynamical systems to the study of development over the last decade. The explosion of the dynamical systems framework in the physical and biological sciences has opened the door to a new Zeitgeist for studying development. This appeal to dynamical systems by developmentalists is natural given the intuitive links between the established fundamental problems of development and the conceptual and operational scope of nonlinear dynamical systems. This promise of a new approach and framework within which to study development has led to some progress in recent years but also a growing appreciation of the difficulty of both fully examining the new metaphor and realizing its potential. Divided into 4 parts, this book is a result of a recent conference on dynamical systems and development held at Pennsylvania State University The first 3 parts focus on the content domains of development that have given most theoretical and empirical attention to the potential applications of dynamical systems physical growth and movement cognition and communication These parts show that a range of nonlinear models have been applied to a host of developmental phenomena Part 4 highlights two particular methodological issues that hold important implications for the modeling of developmental phenomena with dynamical systems techniques *Collected Papers from the Research Laboratory Parke, Davis & Company.
