Abstract

Language practice in the format of 'repetition' has often been associated with behavioristic drills that was regarded as giving rise to habit formation, and was often excluded from the mainstream language teaching approaches. However, this study, drawing upon Bygate's (1999) argument on task being a context for the framing and reframing of language, shows that repetition in meaningful tasks does not necessarily involve passive performance repetition, instead, L2 learners are actively re-constructing the narrative discourse under the task repetition condition. This study provides support to this argument through the analysis of the speech samples from thirteen learners performing an immediate L2 task repetition. The participants were asked to perform a video-based monologue story narration twice to an imagined listener, and the comparison of the learners' first and second speech performance shows that the learners enhanced their discourse performance with: (1) larger discourse quantity (evidenced by more Total Words, Total Propositions, and higher P-density); (2) higher cohesion (evidenced by higher LSA Given/New value); and (3) higher lexical quality (evidenced by higher Noun Hyperonymy value, indicating more specific nouns used). The results suggest that task repetition in addition to its effects on language complexity, accuracy, and fluency has an impact on learners' speech performance at the discourse level.

Introduction

Research on task-based language teaching and learning has undergone remarkable development in recent years (Ellis, 2003, 2005; Long 2014; Robinson, 2011; Skehan, 2009; Van den Branden, Bygate, & Norris, 2009). Research findings in general lend support to the effectiveness of using 'tasks', in which meaning is primary, with variations of conditions and characteristics for the improvement of second language performance and proficiency (Samuda & Bygate, 2008; Skehan, Bui, Li, & Wang, 2012). However, among the task conditions, task repetition perhaps is the least studied (though notable studies include Ahmadian & Tavakoli, 2011; Bui, 2015; Bygate, 1996, 1999, 2001; De Jong & Perfetti, 2012; Fukuta, 2016; Lynch & McLean, 2000; Gass, Mackey, Alvarez-Torres, & Fernandez-

Individual Differences in Second/Foreign Language Speech Production: Multidisciplinary Approaches and New Sounds Peijian Paul Sun, Boping Yuan, Xun Yan, Jimin Kahng, 2023-09-01

Second foreign language L2 speech production is a complex process requiring individuals combined efforts to utilize various processing components such as conceptualiser formulator and articulator Since the publication of Pim Levelt's book Speaking From Intention to Articulation in 1989 a considerable number of studies have examined L2 speech production in the field of neuroscience with a particular focus on the link between speech perception and speech production Undeniably a neurolinguistic examination of speech production can enrich our understanding of how human brains compute linguistic information at a cognitive level However it is insufficient by only focusing on the neurocognitive dimension of speech production given that individuals speech production can be subject to various individual differences factors either cognitively affectively or socio culturally It is therefore necessary to move beyond the neurocognitive understanding of speech production by taking every possible perspective into consideration Individual difference as an umbrella term covers psychological traits personal characteristics cognitive and emotional components that distinguish learners from each other Given that individual difference factors can reveal disparities in L2 learning and performance among learners such factors have attracted researchers growing interest concerning their influences on L2 speech processing their relationships with L2 speech performance and their contributions to L2 speech development Nevertheless our understanding of L2 speech production is not only insufficient compared to other L2 skills such as writing and reading but also limited to the neurocognitive account of L2 speech production More research therefore is in urgent need to uncover the influence of various individual differences factors on L2 speech production from multidisciplinary perspectives
