Symposium, 1979 Differentiation and Neoplasia R. G. McKinnell, M. A. Diberardino, M. Blumenfeld, R. D. Bergad, 2013-03-09 There is no commonly accepted mechanism to explain differentiation of either normal or neoplastic cells Despite this fact the organizers of the 3rd International Conference on Differentiation recognized that there is much emerging evidence which supports the view that both normal cells and many cancer cells share common differentiative processes Accordingly the organizers perceived that clinical scientists and developmental biologists would greatly benefit by together considering differentiation In that way developmental biologists would be apprised of recent insights in cancer cell biology and the physician scientist would be updated on events in developmental biology and both would gain new understanding of the cell biology of neoplasia A specific example may reveal the potential value of developmental biologists interacting with cancer physicians An example chosen at random suggests that probably any paper included in the symposium volume would serve the purpose Dr Stephen Subtelny reviewed recent studies by his laboratory concerning germ cell migration and replication in frog embryos How might those results interest the cancer scientist Dr Subtelny showed that primordial germ cells of a fertile graft will reverse their migratory direction and move into a sterile host Perhaps in this context it would not be inappropriate to state that the germ cells of the graft metastasized into the host Germ cells from grafts of a different species will populate the previously sterile host gonad Certain Factors in the Development of a New Spatial Coordination Mrs. Wooster Curti, 1923 Regional Development Research in China: A Roadmap to 2050 Dadao Lu, Jie Fan, 2011-12-27 As one of the eighteen field specific reports comprising the comprehensive

Small and medium enterprises SME have attracted increasing interest in the last few years and industrialization is no longer seen as a linear way of development This book analyzes how SME clusters emerge in a developing economy Using India as a case study it addresses one central question If growth has largely failed to be inclusive so far and if employing a work force in increasing returns activities through a different trajectory of industrialization is largely dependent upon industrial clusters of small and medium sized firms then what are the structural infirmities and asymmetries that need to be taken into account in the context of framing policies related to industrial clusters The book identifies the structural infirmities in industrial clusters in India which could be typical to any of the developing countries and sharply in contrast to European success stories Blending theory and empirical material it provides a middle ground between the two extremes of a uniform policy assuming one size fits all and a specific policy based on individual cases The book redraws the broad contours where space and production processes mutually constitute each other giving rise to outcomes somewhat generic to underdevelopment It is of interest to academics working in the fields of economics business administration management and development economics
